ASSEMBLY PASSES FLAT $3 TAG MEASURE; HOUSE ADOPTS BILL CURTAILING REGENTS' POWERS

$1,456,000 in Bonds Lost by Messenger Million Is Pledged

Denies Knowledge Of Jafsie Numbers On Board in Closet

Admits He Lied to Police About Ransom Bills; Harried by Wilentz' Dogged Questioning,
Bruno Appears Excited; Says Ladder, Window Sketches in Book Not His Work.

By JOHN FERRIS.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Bruno Hauptmann, willing under a driving cross-examination, fought today with desperate, stumbling words from the witness stand at his trial for murdering the Lindbergh baby.

Accused of lies, he twice cried "Stop that!" at his inquisitor, the determined Attorney-General David T. Wilentz.

He admitted he lied when he was held in New York, but when Wilentz shouted "Lies, lies, lies, about Lindbergh ransom money!" the prisoner shot back: "Well, you lied to me, too."

Throughout the day's ordeal Hauptmann, perspiring, white-faced and often faltering, insisted he was innocent of the kidnapping, the baby's murder, the cruel ransom hoax.

"It is—" he protested, "I feel innocent and I am innocent, and that keeps me the power to stand up."

But he admitted he told "not the truth" when he was arrested last September and grumbled about the ransom money in his pocket and hidden in his garage, that he lied when he told District Attorney Samuel Foley, of the Bronx, that he "scrawled" numbers on a closet board.

Denies Writing Number.

He denied, "positive," that he wrote Dr. John F. Condon's address and telephone number on the board, when the elderly Bronx schoolmaster was negotiating for payment of the $50,000 ransom.

Confronted by crude sketches of a ladder on the pages of his own account book, he denied calmly, with waxen face, that he put them there.

Wilentz drew from Hauptmann the admission that he didn't count the more than $14,000 in ransom bills when, he claims, he found them in a shoe box left in his keeping by Isador Fisch, now dead.

They were not all counted for two weeks, the prisoner said, because they were "wet." And he didn't tell his wife, Anna, about the "find," he admitted.

He denied he rushed into the street from a restaurant when he heard a radio report that the body of Baby Lindbergh had been found in a New Jersey thicket.

Hauptmann fought stubborn as Wilentz sought to show that his own misapprehension was like that of the 14 ransom notes, and when the attorney-general hinted he might have planned the kidnapping when the baby was born.

"I didn't even know the Lindbergh child was born," he said.

Spells Correctly.

Once he smiled in painful transitory triumph when Wilentz asked him to spell "signature," one of the key words of the ransom notes, spelled "i-g-a-a-u-r-e," and he spelled it correctly.

The atmosphere of the old courtroom was plainly antipathetic to the pale German carpenter, but he seemed in no wise aware of the undercurrent.

Chicagoan Asks $100,000 Heart Balm From Widow

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Can a mere man collect $100,000 for a broken heart?

Robert Isaacson, blaming business ruin and a wounded heart on the "charms and wiles" of a wealthy widow, put a breach of promise suit into reverse of the usual order today and asked a superior court jury to "ok" his bill against Mrs. Mary Byrne Alexander.

Telling his story of romance on a moonlit beach in the presence of the defendant, Isaacson insisted it was no "platonic" love and protested he could marry her today.

Mrs. Alexander is the widow of a former officer of the International Harvester Company. Her attorney asserted she is not really wealthy at all.

Isaacson's counsel asked each juror whether he would be prejudiced against a man suing a woman for breach of promise.

A venireman was disqualified when he admitted prejudice.

Employees of Bank Quizzed by Police

Two Armed Guards Unable to Explain Disappearance of Package; Government Agencies, Banks and Dealers Notified
Immediately To Stop Payment.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The disappearance of $1,456,000 in government bonds, on consignment from the Bank of Manhattan, was reported tonight to police.

A messenger and two guards, entrusted with delivery of the bonds and who reported their loss to the bank, were detained for questioning.

The bonds were fully covered by insurance. Government agencies, banks and dealers were notified immediately to stop payment.

Neither the bank nor police would give the names of the messenger and the guards. O. G. Alexander, a vice president, said the messenger was between 50 and 55 years old and had been an employee of the bank for a number of years.

When the messenger left the bank, he had a wallet of deliveries—containing the bonds—on his person. His first stop was at Devine & Company.

The vice president said the messenger told the following story:

At Devine & Company, the messenger took from his wallet the packages for delivery there. He stepped away from the cashier's window in the small delivery room, and walked for his receipt. He placed the wallet on a counter ledge as he waited.

The cashier called out: "Bank of Manhattan, your check is ready." The messenger stepped up to the cashier's window, got his receipt and stepped back for the package and found it gone.

The messengers' delivery room at Devine & Company is about 10x15 feet. The counter ledge runs along one side of the wall.

The messenger, Alexander said, was accompanied to the delivery room by the two guards. One of them remained with the messenger. The other went downstairs in the Devine offices to have some checks certified. Alexander said the messenger asked the guard to do this errand for him to save time.

Acting Deputy Chief Inspector Francis J. Keag, in charge of Manhattan detectives, took over the questioning of the messenger and guards and by officials of the bank and bonding companies.

Deputy Chief Inspector John J. Ryan said the police were not notified of the disappearance until 4:30 p. m. The bank said the delivery started at 2:30.

J. P. Morgan Selling His Famous Paintings

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—After spending a lifetime collecting a vast gallery of art, J. P. Morgan turned today, disposing of two rare paintings with an international reputation to the Metropolitan Museum.

One was the celebrated "Portrait of Anne of Austria," by Rubens; the other, a Triptych of St. Lawrence enthroned, surrounded by saints and donors, by Fra Filippo.

It was revealed at the same time that four other paintings, including the world-famous "Portrait of Giovanni Torshou" by Domenico Ghirlandajo, have also been offered for sale by Morgan.

Art circles were astonished by the banker's decision to dispose of these valuable possessions. At Morgan's office in Wall street it was said the sales were being made because he wished "merely to reduce his collection and simplify the settling of his estate."

Morgan is 67 years old.

State Universities For New Buildings

Opposition to Regents' Bill Withdrawn After Talmadge Promises Fund—PWA Loan To
Be Dropped—$2,000,000 Diversion To Pay Pensions, Teachers Approved by House.

As all opposition to the Talmadge program faded when the governor agreed to sponsor a special appropriation of $1,000,000 for new university buildings, both branches of the general assembly Monday adopted the administration's flat $3 tag bill and the house speedily approved the Talmadge-sponsored bills for diverting $2,000,000 in accrued highway funds to pay past-due debts of the state school teachers and Confederate pensioners and curtailing the powers of the board of regents, the latter measure invalidating the projected PWA loan under consideration by the regents.

Action of both houses on the tag bill means that it is only a matter of routine before final enactment of this measure.

Approval of the diversion bill in the senate is being delayed pending submission of a proposal by President Charles D. Redwine to add to the diverted sum anything which may be realized on immediate discounting of $1,600,000 in Western & Atlantic railroad certificates. The senate is known to be in complete accord with the house on the diversion of the $2,000,000.

Regents' Opposition Withdrawn.

The opposition to the regents' bill, which centered among the regents themselves, was withdrawn after the governor's agreement to sponsor the special appropriation for new buildings, which will be paid in 1935, 1936 and 1937. The projected PWA loan will be dropped, Chairman Marion Smith, of the regents, announced following a meeting of the regents at which the governor made his agreement on the special appropriation. The regents' bill went through the house, 442 to 3, after an amendment providing that all fees, including the state receipts from football games and other athletic contests, should be paid into the state treasury and then allocated back to the universities whence they came, on warrants signed by the governor.

The actions of the two houses cleared the way for first consideration, today in the house and Wednesday in the senate, on the governor's bill to establish a radio-equipped state highway patrol, a measure which is apparently certain of adoption, as strongly have administration forces asserted themselves since the Talmadge adherents were given a setback last Friday when the tag bill was amended in the house so that commercial buses and trucks would pay a higher tag scale than that of the regents' program, a plan which was reconsidered and then eliminated Monday.

Talmadge Victory Certain.

House and senate leaders agreed Monday night that the agreement between the governor and the regents "knocked the props" out from under the Talmadge opposition.

Adoption of the Talmadge program in the house was assured, a joint statement from Speaker E. H. Rouse and Floor Leader Roy V. Harris and H. B. Edwards, chairman of the administration committee, said. It was only a matter of time before there may be a few stragglers in opposition to the remaining measures on the final outcome.

Speaker Pro Tem, Ellis G. Arnall, who was the leader in the opposition to the regents' bill, likewise said he was sailing for the governor's program.

"The regents' bill endangered all of the opposition," he said. "In fact, it was even the cause of the house amendment to the tag bill last week. We ought to have the governor's program finally cleared by the end of this week and turn our attention to other matters."

Agreement Pleases Assembly.

The agreement between the governor and the board of regents met with the general satisfaction of practically the entire assembly. The three votes in the house against adoption of the

Railway Development Group To Hold Meeting Here Today

Session of Farm, Industrial and Other Agents Will Precede Agricultural Workers' Meet.

The Railway Development Association of the Southeast, an organization of agricultural, industrial, marketing, colonization, real estate and public relations agents of the various railroads operating in this section, will hold its fifteenth annual meeting at the Henry Grady hotel today.

This meeting precedes the opening of the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers, which will be in session at the Henry Grady through Friday.

Speakers on the program of the railroad group today include Paul V. Maria, of the federal emergency relief administration at Washington; W. T. Bennett, regional supervisor for the rural rehabilitation section, division of program planning, Washington; Professor M. L. Nichols, of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala.; John T. Stinson, agricultural development director of the Missouri Pacific railroad, of St. Louis, and W. A. Burnett, general manager of the Union Stock Yards, at Nashville, Tenn.

J. A. Winslow, of Cuthbert, Ga., president of the association and agricultural agent for the Central of Georgia railway, will preside and respond to the address of welcome this morning. W. R. Ulrich, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, will welcome the delegates to Atlanta, while Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will voice the invocation.

Committees will be appointed at the morning session, with their reports and election of officers featuring the afternoon meeting. The morning session will start at 9:30 o'clock, with the afternoon meeting coming to order at 2 o'clock.

Tonight at 7 o'clock there will be a "family dinner" at the Henry Grady with W. C. Lawrence, of Birmingham, the associate advertising manager of the Progressive Farmer and Southern Ruralist, as toastmaster.

In conjunction with the convention of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers meetings will be held by the southern section of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, the cotton states branch of the American Association of Economic Entomologists, the southern division of the American Phytopathological Society, rural rehabilitation supervisors of southern states and southern vocational agricultural workers.

The main convention will hold sectional meetings covering agronomy, crops, soils, soil erosion, animal husbandry, dairy, dairy science, cotton, forestry, home economics, horticulture and poultry.

Officers of the association are J. Phil Campbell, president; J. R. Ricks, first vice president; L. R. Neel, second vice president; Ward H. Sachs, secretary-treasurer. The executive committee is composed of all officers and Connie J. Bonkagel, C. P. Blackwell and A. P. Spencer.

Wires Swamp Congress On World Court Issue

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Radio listeners urged by Mrs. Frank D. Roosevelt and Father Charles E. Coughlin to express their views on American adherence to the World Court literally swamped congress with telegrams today.

Father Coughlin in his Sunday afternoon radio sermon appealed to his listeners to telegraph their congressmen urging the vote against adherence to the world court.

'SMITTY' LOCATED, READY TO CARRY ON FOR TEAM OF ELKS

Smitty has been found. The famous pig which had been so successfully "rooting" for his side in the Elk membership race, caused consternation last week by his disappearance. But through the sleuthing of Dr. Rayford Tharpe and Clayton Burke, who are refereeing the race, Smitty's whereabouts were discovered, and today he will be placed in the hands of some uncomfortable Elk until that individual obtains a new member.

WORLD-WIDE PEACE URGED BY HARLOW IN ROTARY SPEECH

Urging world peace, Dr. Ralph Harlow, noted lecturer and author, addressed the luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Rotary Club at its 12:30 o'clock meeting Monday at the Capital City Club.

"Let us do all that we can to prevent the cause of peace," Dr. Harlow pleaded in discussing his subject, "The Six Objects of the Rotary in Relation to the Next World War."

"The last war was child's play compared to what the next one will be. My brother is a chemist, and he often tells me how the new gases he helps to make will destroy civilization. I shudder to think of it, for I saw the last one, and it was bad enough."

"America must somehow find itself to prevent this tragedy," Dr. Harlow said, "and it is through such organizations as this that it can best be done."

J. C. Harris Jr., president of the Rotary Club, presided at the meeting, and Al Foster gave the "Sunshine Report," composed of interesting excerpts about the members.

Witnesses Guarded From Mals Threats

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 28.—(UP)—A woman witness' assertion that she had been threatened by members of the Robert Mals gang caused Judge Frank N. Nease to place her and two other women under guard today.

The witness is Mrs. Florence Whitman, 32, waitress at a restaurant in near-by Pennsauken township which was held up last July 15.

A guard was ordered to escort her, Mrs. Pasquale Basanti, wife of the restaurant proprietor, and a third woman whose name was not disclosed, after Mrs. Whitman told of the alleged threats.

Her testimony was given in the trial of John Mitchell and Louis Spiegel, accused of the holdup. Charles Zell, alleged member of the Mals "hit-state" gang, who was involved in the slaying of Detective William Feitz several months ago, also is indicted in the robbery. He is now serving a term in the Philadelphia prison for participation in a holdup there.

Mrs. Whitman identified Mitchell as the man who carried a machine gun during the holdup, and said Spiegel and another man carried pistols.

Rearmament Rumor Growing in Germany

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Wave upon wave of rumor was piling up today, both within and without Germany, concerning sub-rosa rearment. In the absence of anything from official sources it conjured up pictures in the minds of foreign residents probably more alarming than reality warranted.

Today's news that in Geneva and other European centers uneasiness exists because of Germany's official attitude toward armaments brought disavowals of belief that "any government would be so mad as to start a war with us over our arms policies."

In every respect the Germans, who pride themselves upon their almost brutal frankness, have developed a clamorous silence about military affairs. In consequence residents who are widely acquainted with Germans say they cannot help but allow rumors they hear to influence their judgment.

Plot To Communize Austria Discovered

(Copyright, 1935, by United Press.) VIENNA, Jan. 28.—(UP)—A radical plot to overthrow the fascist state of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and set up communist rule in Austria has been discovered by police, it was revealed tonight.

The United Press was informed that a series of raids in Vienna brought to light the disquieting fact that government employees are among the increasingly powerful supporters enlisted under the communist movement in Austria.

The semi-official press reported that in one raid in which 92 communists were arrested, "the majority were university students, clerks and employees in the Vienna government. Nearly all were Jews."

The raid was a series of arrests against communist and socialist agitators threatening the Schuschnigg ministry, occurred at the headquarters of the so-called "Jahran Society," whose members were said to be chiefly Jews.

Vinson Asks Probe Of Sawmill Code

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Congressional investigation of the effect of the NRA code on the small sawmill business was proposed today in a resolution offered by Representative Vinson.

The resolution set forth that "both employees and owners in some branches of the industry prefer continued operation without the code, to bankruptcy under it."

In an accompanying statement, Vinson said "there can be no doubt that the lumber code has completely destroyed the small sawmills, and recently more than 100 sawmills resolved to abandon their efforts to observe the lumber code and close down their mills, the result of which was to throw out of employment hundreds of people."

F.D.R. Air Message Planned Thursday

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Four special messages dealing with the reorganization of federal regulation of transportation will be submitted to congress by President Roosevelt.

The first, transmitting the report of the special aviation commission, will go to the capitol Thursday.

Congressional attention will be called to the entire transportation problem. The president hopes to bring about a unification of all federal agencies dealing with the subject.

The messages will deal with railroads, waterway and highway traffic, and reorganization of the interstate commerce commission.

Clark Howell, chairman of the special aviation commission, discussed his report today with Mr. Roosevelt and it was agreed haste was necessary in order to obtain permanent legislation for air mail contracts before March 1, when the existing temporary arrangement expires.

MOTHER TO RETURN DAUGHTER, JAILED AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Mrs. Susie Godwin, of 240 Hunter street, said Monday afternoon she planned to go to Charlotte, N. C., to bring home her daughter, Eunice Cottle, who was arrested there with a man listed as G. W. (Pat) Patislo, of Atlanta, and another girl, who gave the name of Eloise Wilson, also of Atlanta.

A warrant charging kidnapping of the Cottle girl, who is 17 years old, was sworn out against Patislo in municipal court on January 4, on complaint of Mrs. Godwin.

The Charlotte arrests were made as the man and two girls were about to board a train for Atlanta. They had railroad tickets to Piedmont, Ala., and in the man's possession, Charlotte police reported, were found nitroglycerine, dynamite caps and bullets. Detectives claim Patislo confessed he stole an automobile in Chattanooga and abandoned it near Charlotte on Saturday.

WALK-OUT CLOSES TUCAPAU COTTON MILLS

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Jan. 28.—(UP)—The Tucapau mills, one of Spartanburg county's largest textile concerns, closed today when union workers walked out in protest against alleged "stretching out" of weavers and spinners.

The strike was orderly. C. L. Gibson, president of the union local, said the strike was called because weavers had been notified they were to be given more "side runs" at 30 cents per week less pay and that weavers were to be increased from 22 to 32 looms.

L. A. Hamer, mill superintendent, declined to comment on the shutdown. He said workers' charges of a "stretch-out" were "lies to me."

The mills normally employ about 800 persons.

MOONEY'S ATTORNEY TO CONTINUE FIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Tom Mooney will appeal for a rehearing of whether he has exhausted all avenues to freedom through the California courts, John F. Finerty, an attorney, announced today through the American Civil Liberties Union.

Finerty said a petition will be filed within a few days in the supreme court of the United States, which turned down Mooney's application for a writ of habeas corpus without prejudice recently.

The tribunal's decision is expected when it convenes February 4, Finerty said. If the petition is rejected, the case will be carried immediately to the California supreme court, he said.

'WOUNDED' IN LEG, NEGRO IS CLEARED ON FIREARM COUNT

Edison Lovejoy, negro, was cleared of charges of shooting firearms in the case against him Monday afternoon.

Edison appeared in court with a left leg that wobbled unbelievably. He explained he fired his shotgun at prowlers who had been "pestering" around his home at the rear of 850 Juniper street. In fact, said Edison, one of the prowlers shot him in the knee. He volunteered to show his injuries.

The knee that Judge Callaway gazed upon when Edison had pulled up his trouser leg was emphatically smashed. Smashed to splinters, in fact. And the frightful wabbling in Edison's walk was explained.

The entire leg was artificial and the bullet that entered the knee joint had reduced the hinges to nothing but kindling wood, torn leather and scorched cork.

MUSEUM CHIEFS FEAR EXPOSURES AT FAKER'S TRIAL

FONTAINEBLEAU, France, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Curators of art museums in many countries will turn their thoughts toward the courtroom here tomorrow when two men go on trial, charged with being the most audacious boxers ever known.

Paul Cazot is charged with faking paintings of masters, and Jean Charles Millet with selling them. Both, police said, have confessed.

The fear of curators is that Cazot and Millet will "talk," and expose as fakes, paintings for which many thousands of dollars have been paid—paintings bought in good faith as originals.

It was Cazot's tragedy that he painted in the style of the most famous of the French Impressionists, that it did not pay him to paint in his own.

Jean Francois Millet, the great French painter, was the model for Cazot. Jean Charles Millet, his co-defendant, is Millet's grandson.

Cazot also faked Monets and works by Pissarro.

CHAUFFEUR, HEIRRESS HONEYMOON IN SOUTH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Jane Cooke, 20-year-old society girl of Chevy Chase, Md., and her chauffeur-husband, George S. Scarlett, were en route to Florida tonight on their honeymoon, unworried by the theft charge placed against the bridegroom by the bride's mother, Mrs. Howard De Walden Cooke.

The Florida honeymoon journey was disclosed by Mrs. John J. Madigan Jr., of Washington, an aunt of the girl, who said she had spoken with her niece by telephone.

"They are very happy and aren't worrying about charges of theft," Mrs. Madigan said. "They said that at the end of their honeymoon they would return and settle the matter."

Accompanying the couple on the honeymoon is Jane's older sister, Anne, 22.

SYNTHETIC PRODUCTION OF VITAMIN B-1 SEEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Synthetic production of vitamin B-1 was believed possible today after 24 years of patient work by a chemist.

Robert R. Williams, chemical director of the Bell Telephone laboratories, succeeded in isolating the substance in vitamin B-1, which is used in treating nervous disorders. He found that it is composed of two nuclei, pyrimidine and thiazole. The former is found in many substances in the human body, but thiazole is not. It is the fourth of the six known vitamins to be isolated. Two vitamins still are missing, G and E.

AUCTION SALE SET FOR HURT BUILDING

Property To Go to Highest Bidder March 5 Under Pomeroy's Order.

Foreclosure sale of the Hurt building will take place March 5 between 1 and 2 p. m., before the courthouse door, under an order signed Monday by Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy. The sale to the highest bidder will include the "triangle" in front of the building, title to which was assumed by the receivers, Walter C. Hendrix and Ronald Ransom, upon payment of $50,000 to representatives of the Hurt interests several weeks ago.

In a recent order, New York and Atlanta bondholders' committees were authorized to make a bid of $2,100,000 on the property with the right to recover to Frank D. Mennie, of New York, representing the Hurt interests. The plan provides for payment of $1,500,000 in cash, and the remainder in new bonds.

Under Judge Pomeroy's order any holder of 7 per cent first mortgage gold bonds may bid. Bidders will be required to deposit certified checks or cash in the amount of $25,000 or bonds totaling $50,000, the court reserving the right to reject any bid. If a purchaser whose bid is confirmed by the court does not complete payment within 90 days, the deposit made shall be forfeited as to the court. The receiver is instructed to furnish any desired information to prospective purchasers.

Under the agreement between Mennie and the bondholders, in the event any outside bidder should bid more than $2,100,000 and the new purchase corporation should be unwilling to continue, the committee may continue the bidding up to such amount as they choose, and if they acquire title to the property would not be obligated to sell to the purchase corporation.

Dionne Quintuplets Are Eight Months Old

CALLENDER, Ont., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets are eight months old today, and, despite their premature birth, they are big girls now—plenty big. A local statistician figured out that if they were scrobbic enough to stand on each other's head they would tower 10 feet, 7 inches high, which is considerable height for any eight-month-old child.

Dr. A. R. Dafee, the watchful physician who brought the children into the world, disclosed that during the last 30 days the five have aggregated a gain of 6 1/2 inches in height.

TRIAL OF MAJ. SHEPARD IS MOVING RAPIDLY

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Major Charles A. Shepard was painted today before the eyes of his third wife and a federal court jury in contrasting terms as a wife poisoner and an innocent victim of two women—one a drunkard and the other a "gold digger"—as he went on trial a second time on a murder charge.

Trial of the retired army medical officer for the death of his second wife, Zenana, 37, at Fort Riley, Kan., Jan. 15, 1928, was spurred by Federal Judge Colin Nebeker, of New Mexico, who said he expected the case might be completed in a week. The prosecution in its opening statement pictured the 64-year-old defendant, once convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment, as having fatally poisoned the second Mrs. Shepard because of her "drunkenness" and that he had fallen prey to the wiles of Miss Brandon. Shepard, immaculate in civilian clothes, was accompanied to court by his third wife, the former Mrs. Alice J. Watt, of Denver, whom he married while his first conviction was being appealed.

Ice Barrier Balks

Byrd's Return Trip

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Jan. 28.—(Via Mackay Radio).—The second Byrd antarctic expedition, its work practically done and bags packed, waited impatiently here today while the two ships that are to take the men home tried vainly to find a way through broken ice in the Bay of Whales.

The old lumber freighter which serves as flagship yesterday afternoon came pitching and rolling out of the mist and gales of the Ross sea and briefly stood off the mouth of the bay to look things over. From East Cape to West Cape the bay was jammed full of loose ice blows in by the long spell of northerly winds. Hovering eccentrically through the mass of broken floes and pack ice were half a dozen bergs, at the foot of which the seas exploded in great bursts of spray.

Commodore G. J. Ersten, commanding the flagship Ruppert, had no choice but to come about and lay his ship to before the northeasterly gale, joining the barkentine Bear of Oakland. As this dispatch was written the flagship had been out there 25 hours and the Bear had not been able to find a stable berth since last Tuesday morning.

Payne Leaves Fortune To Red Cross, Colleges

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The will of John Barton Payne, late chairman of the American Red Cross, left a $1,100,000 estate to be divided equally among the Red Cross and two other institutions. Equal shares went to Washington & Lee University and to William & Mary College.

In addition to these gifts specific bequests, totaling $400,000, were made to numerous relatives, servants, and other institutions. The will was filed for probate today.

HUNGARIAN WOMAN ADMITS POISONING IN MASS TRIAL

DEBRECZEN, Hungary, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The mass poison trial of nine peasant women reached a dramatic climax today with the testimony of a 50-year-old woman that she had killed her husband with 85 worth of poison purchased from Mrs. John Nagy, the 72-year-old "magic medicine woman."

When the presiding judge asked the witness, Mrs. Balint Nagy, a relative of the alleged leader of the husband-poisoners, why she put her husband to death she replied that he was ill and she was afraid she would have to support him.

Mrs. John Nagy, however, denied she had sold the poison to the witness, whereupon the latter shouted: "Oh no, I'm a pious woman," replied the alleged poison vendor, who was charged with personally carrying out five murders including that of her own husband.

According to the prosecution the murders extended over a period of 15 years and hundreds of husbands were victims of poisoning at the hands of their wives who sought to gain possession of marital property or to secure other husbands.

The body of another man was ordered exhumed, bringing to the number of bodies among the ghastly exhibits spread out in court for state's evidence, together with phials of poison and dissected human organs.

VILLA MONTES NEARED BY PARAGUAYAN ARMY

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Striking westward from the battle line along the western edge of the Chaco, Paraguay's troops today captured the town of Boyubie, in the Bolivian department of Santa Cruz. The will of John Barton Payne, late chairman of the American Red Cross, left a $1,100,000 estate to be divided equally among the Red Cross and two other institutions.

Equal shares went to Washington & Lee University and to William & Mary College.

DR. HOLMES LECTURES AT WESLEY TONIGHT

Noted Minister and Author To Speak on 'Hitlerism Vs. Bolshevism.'

In order to enable as many students as possible to hear Dr. John Haynes Holmes, noted lecturer and minister, when he speaks here at 8:30 o'clock tonight, at Wesley Memorial church, a special half-price admission is being charged. It was announced by the Atlanta unit, Junior Hadassah, sponsors of the lecture here.

Dr. Holmes is also widely known as an author and his books are widely read. He visited Palestine in 1929 as the representative of Nathan Straus, and it was on the basis of his intimate experience there that he wrote "Palestine, Today and Tomorrow," his latest book.

In his lecture here, he speaks on the subject, "Hitlerism versus Bolshevism," a study in comparative revolutions. Dr. Holmes first visited Russia in 1922 in the early days of the revolution when the civil wars were still on. He saw Russia at its worst, and was in Germany on the eve of the Hitler regime.

Dr. Holmes is editor of Unity, Chicago; associate editor of The World Tomorrow, New York, and has published many sermons and magazine articles. In addition to "Palestine, Today and Tomorrow," he is author of many other widely read books, including "The Revolutionary Function

Fresh Vegetables Scarce As Cold Wave Recedes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Fresh vegetables will be scarce and expensive for the next month or two, reports from the "frozen" south indicated today.

Jack Frost has invaded the customarily mild climates of the south and southwest and cut sharply into the domestic supply. Until those sections can grow a new crop, Cuba and Mexico will be called upon for emergency supplies.

This new blow at housewives' budgets followed closely sharp increases in prices of ham, bacon, pork chops and eggs. Living costs, already increased 11 per cent in 12 months, continued upward.

Some encouragement, however, was contained in the prediction of an agricultural department economist that "vegetable prices won't get excessively high because of the competition from canned goods—and there's a good supply of those."

of the Modern Church," "Is Death the End?" "New Wares for Old," "The Life and Letters of Robert Collyer," "New Churches for Old" and "Patriotism Is Not Enough."

Tickets for the lecture, it is announced, are on sale at Davidson's and Rich's, and are being sold by members of the Junior Hadassah.

Alabama Mob Fails To Secure Negro

BRADFORD, Ala., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Quick work by a mine superintendent and a commissary cashier today prevented summary execution of a negro arrested as a suspect in an attack on the wife of a miner here early this morning.

The negro, C. C. Sanderson, answered the general description of a negro Mrs. Dora Cosby, 33, told officers had attacked her and a group of 200 armed miners immediately surrounded him.

W. C. Chase, mine superintendent, and C. E. Patterson, commissary cashier, interceded for the negro and persuaded the crowd to surrender him to officers. Sanderson then was taken to jail in Birmingham to protect him. Later three other negroes were quietly taken into custody and removed to Birmingham for their protection.

Mrs. Cosby told officers a negro gained entrance to her bedroom shortly after her husband had left for work, and after slashing her wrists with a razor, smothered her outcries with a pillow and attacked her. Mrs. Cosby said the negro gained entrance through a window and fled the same way. The razor, Mrs. Cosby said the negro used, was found in an adjoining room wrapped in a cloth. It was identified as the property of her husband.

A 10-year-old daughter, who was in another part of the house, said she saw no one enter or leave.

GOLD PATENT IS GIVEN ARNOLD AT DAHLONEGA

Letters patent on processes of recovering gold in which an alternating electric current is used to recover the fine and float gold which has, in the past, been lost at mining and milling plants, have been issued to Craig R. Arnold, well-known Georgian of Dahlonega. The patent was granted on January 22 last.

The application for patent was originally filed, Arnold states, in 1906 and refilled in 1931. The process was the subject of litigation which resulted in the declaration of Arnold as inventor of this method for the recovery of waste gold.

Arnold is the inventor of approximately 25 different patents and appliances.

O. E. BURTON DIES HERE AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Retired Businessman Was
With Company for More Than 30 Years.

O. E. Burton, widely known retired Atlanta businessman, died Monday morning at a private hospital after a brief illness. He was 59 and resided at 903 Plymouth road, N. E.

Mr. Burton was connected with the Swift Fertilizer Company for more than 30 years and when he retired three years ago he was southern manager.

He was a native of Franklin, Ind., and was graduated from Franklin College there. He was a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity.

Surviving are his wife, a daughter, Miss Rachel Jane Burton; a son, Wynne Burton; three sisters, Mrs. Richard McDaniel and Mrs. Don Sprague, both of Trafalgar, Ind., and

Fire Chief Asks Help To Lower Fire Loss

Chief O. J. Parker, of the Atlanta fire department, Monday was asking co-operation from business and commercial houses, manufacturing concerns and some owners in the drive to keep Atlanta's fire losses at a minimum for 1935.

In a letter addressed to leading concerns the chief pointed with pride to the 1934 record here, asserting Atlanta won first place in the United States in fire prevention activities.

The local department has entered the Inter-Chamber Fire Waste contest and Chief Parker and his department is out to win again "of course with the co-operation of Atlantans." The Atlanta department established a 31-year low record in fire losses in 1934.

Mrs. Frank Kennedy, of Franklin, and two brothers, Elva H. Burton, of Indianapolis, and Will Burton, of Franklin.

Funeral rites are to be held at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Spring Hill, and the Rev. Richard Orme will officiate. The place of burial will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Never blame your child of carelessness and mental laxity until you have first assured yourself that it is not your fault. Many times the subnormalcy of the child is due to defective vision.

It is his privilege to enjoy the same benefits and opportunities as other children. His condition can probably be corrected with suitable glasses, if done in time.

Your Child's Health

Your children are growing, learning, going to school, developing. The human body is a machine through which the mind works. Every exhibition of mental activity is accompanied by physical activity, and the quality and quantity of mental work depends as certainly upon the condition of the machine by which it is exhibited as do the quantity and quality of work produced by any less complex man-made mechanism. There are children naturally bright and those naturally dull, but both the bright and the dull do finer and more persistent mental work when they are most fit.

Our Washington bureau has ready for you one of its informative and simply written bulletins covering general rules for finding and recognizing common ailments and physical defects in children. It will furnish you an excellent guide in watching your children's health. Fill out the coupon below and send for it:

TROUT.

There are probably no more fastidious fishermen than trout fishermen. I have listened to them argue for hours on the minute differences in flies and the advisability of using one or the other under certain conditions. Truly, the orthodox trout fisherman is a purist. There are clubs of trout fishermen who will not take in a member unless he fishes only with flies that he has tied himself. The tackle is the most interesting thing to them. The mere sight of a casting rod is nauseating. An artificial minnow is an abomination in their sight. Technique, the art of fly fishing, is the dominant thing. Often the fly fisherman is heard to declaim: "The taking of fish is not all of fishing."

There is a lot to that maxim. It must be quoted from somebody, since it has become almost a proverb. The scenery of the good trout streams—and I have seen a few good ones—is all that anyone could desire. Back of the scenery and back of the tackle, however, there is another picture. That picture has to do with the production of trout for the fisherman.

All the trouts are members of the salmon family. The varieties of trouts are numerous, for the family is world-wide in distribution. Our natives may be divided into two series and again subdivided. There are what Sage calls the salmon-trouts and the char-trouts.

The salmon-trouts include the well known cut-throat trout, with at least 13 subspecies, including the Columbia river trout, the Lake Tahoe trout, the Rio Grande trout and others just as well known; the steelhead trout with four subspecies, and the rainbow trout with seven subspecies. The various golden trouts, such as Kern River race, falls into the rainbow classification.

The char-trouts number 13 races and include the old aristocrat, the brook trout, as well as the Dolly Varden and other famous chars. Thus we have 37 native species of game trout. Add to this the German or brown trout, the Scottish Loch Leven trout, and the European sea trout to the salmon trout list as the Swiss lake trout and European Char to the Char-trout list and we have 42 species that are well worth the candle.

Fair, Warmer Weather Forecast for Atlanta

Fair and warmer weather was predicted for Atlanta today, a change which was expected to bring relief from the cold of the past week, Meteorologist George W. Mindling announced. The temperature extremes are expected to range between 26 and 48 degrees.

The mercury slid to a low of 22 degrees Monday morning, after it had stayed above freezing all day Sunday for the first time in five days. The highest recorded Monday was 38 degrees.

A frost was expected throughout the state Monday night, with the sun due to bring a rise in temperature today. Weather has been colder from Texas to the Atlantic coast and from Florida to Maryland since Sunday morning, while a change to winter has taken place in most of the other sections east of the Rocky mountains.

Dr. Faust Declines Athens Church Call

Dr. William H. Faust, pastor of the Gordon Street Baptist church, Monday wired the Prince Avenue Baptist church, at Athens, Ga., he would be unable to accept the call to that pastorate extended him some two weeks ago.

"I feel that my work at the Gordon Street church is not yet completed," Dr. Faust said in explaining his rejection of the Athens call.

Dr. Faust has been a popular preacher and pastor in Atlanta for a number of years. He has been a leader in civic activities and is one of the best-known ministers in the city, not only to his own congregation and Baptists generally, but among church people of all denominations.

BETTER HOUSING TOPIC FOR CONFERENCE HERE
Long term financing of homes and maintenance cost of dwellings will be an important topic of discussion at a better housing conference under sponsorship of the Portland Cement Association, to be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the First National Bank building.

Among the speakers will be C. F. Steigerwalt, of Chicago; W. R. Ulrich, secretary of the Atlanta better housing committee, and W. A. Sizemore of the state PFA. J. M. Marshall Jr., engineer, is in charge of arrangements.

Data dealing with low cost homes embodying a low rate of depreciation and at the same time being fireproof and livable will be given by Mr. Steigerwalt, who has made a thorough study of design trends and construction methods in the housing field. Pictures of recent low cost housing developments will be shown.

Brick-Tossing Episode Costs Two Targets $12
W. H. Ham, city fireman, of 816 Kendrick avenue, and Constance Aaron, giving her address as 750 Capitol avenue, were fined $12 each by Recorder John L. Cone Monday afternoon. Testimony at the hearing revealed that Ham had been calling on the woman and Mrs. Ham had thrown a brick through the window at the Capitol avenue address. She threw the brick through the window of her husband's automobile, parked outside the house. It was stated.

Judge Cone dismissed a charge of disorderly conduct against Mrs. Ham and told the Aaron woman she was fortunate that Mrs. Ham was armed with nothing more lethal than bricks.

A "Slight Cold" It Was Yesterday!

Today He is Down with Pneumonia!

The Necessity of Prompt and Internal Treatment of a Cold!

THE COMMON COLD is nothing to take lightly. Yearly, it takes a greater toll in life, in health, in time lost from work and school and in medical expense, than any other affliction to which humanity is subject.

The U. S. Bureau of Public Health Service says the common cold is the most frequent cause of illness and that it is often the forerunner of bronchitis, bronchial pneumonia and other equally serious respiratory diseases.

One reason why colds make such fast headway and become so grave in nature is that people are prone to take them too lightly and treat them too casually. Every cold, health authorities will tell you, is a dangerous cold. Every cold will bear watching and business-like treatment.

It is well to remember that a cold is an internal infection. The symptoms may or may not be localized, but whether they are or not, a cold is a systemic infection produced by a virus that has gained access to the body.

As an internal infection, a cold, very plainly, calls for internal treatment. Purely local treatments—applications of this or that—may help temporarily suppress the symptoms, but they won't get at the seat of the trouble, an infection within the body.

A cold, moreover, calls for a cold treatment and not a preparation good for all kinds of other ailments besides colds. Patently, a "cure-all" cannot be as efficacious as a definite treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, to put it briefly, is what a cold calls for. First of all, it is a cold tablet made expressly for the treatment of colds and nothing else.

ing else. It is not "also good" for the relief of earaches, toothaches, dandruff and falling arches. It is, expressly, a cold treatment.

Secondly, Bromo Quinine is internal treatment. It is something you take into your body to combat the infection within. Working internally, or inside you, Bromo Quinine does four things of paramount importance in the relief of a cold.

First, it opens the bowels, gently but firmly, an acknowledgedly advisable step in the treatment of a cold. Second, it checks the infection in the system. Third, it relieves the headache and fever. Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

Of vital importance is this fourfold effect in the treatment of a cold and, in Bromo Quinine, you get it in the form of a single tablet.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is safe as well as efficacious. It contains nothing harmful and leaves no bad after-effects. The fact that it is the largest-selling cold tablet in the world, and has been the stand-by of millions for more than forty years in the treatment of colds, assures you at once of its efficacy and harmlessness.

The course of common sense is the course of safety. When you feel a cold coming on, depend not on half-way measures. Go at once to your druggist and get a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Begin taking the tablets immediately, two every four hours. Usually, if taken in time, Bromo Quinine will stop a cold the first day and that's the speed of action you want to ward off the danger of complications.

All drug stores sell Bromo Quinine tablets and the few pennies' cost may save you much in worry, suspense and expense. Ask firmly for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine and insist upon getting what you ask for. There is nothing "just as good."

1935 Cotton Program Adequate, Dr. Black Says at Athens Meet

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 23.—Added impetus was given today to interest in the Institute of Public Affairs, which closes Wednesday evening.

At the morning session, Dr. Stephen Duggan, expert on international relations and the author of several notable books on related subjects, spoke to the subject, "Contemporary Russia."

In the evening, Dr. John Donald Black, professor of economics at Harvard and chief economist of the federal farm board in 1931 and 1932, discussed the restriction of cotton production in its relationship to foreign trade and competition.

Adequate Cotton Supply. Dr. Black believes the cotton program outlined for 1935 will provide sufficient cotton for domestic consumption and plenty for export.

"The loss of exports during the past two years has been mostly due to a price-puzzling, stabilization loan operation which has raised the Liverpool price of American cotton too far above the price of competing cottons," said Dr. Black, and added: "If we refrain from price pegging in the coming year, placing the loan value below rather than above the true market value, we shall recover considerable of our export market."

"If, however, we wish to hold our share in the export market the years following, we must produce at least 13 to 14 million bales of cotton."

GLASS IN ATTACK ON F.D.R. POWERS

Virginian's Attack Contradicts "Pork Barrel Opposition" Cry, Joined by Nevada's McCarran

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(P)—Further modification of President Roosevelt's $4,880,000 work relief bill was foreshadowed today by an attack on the bill by a member of the House of Representatives, led by the man the chief executive amicably calls an "unreconstructed rebel," Carter Glass, of Virginia.

The 77-year-old Virginian rebelled against the broad language of the measure and spoke his mind at an executive session of the appropriations committee which he heads.

Several changes were made in the bill on the house side last week after the president's veto of the measure.

While Glass refused to discuss the bill for publication afterwards, members of the committee said he had it with stinging words. He was joined by at least one other democratic member of the committee, Senator McCarran, of Nevada.

Open Hearings Banned. Administration forces turned down, however, a demand from republican members of the committee for open hearings on the bill. Minority members were somewhat appeased by an agreement to hold executive hearings before the full committee, which will be published later.

Glass firmly announced there would be no secrecy about consideration of the bill and that the usual custom of publishing the testimony after it was printed would be followed.

Republican forces were elated over the bill and that the usual custom of publishing the testimony after it was printed would be followed.

Opponents of the bill in its present form said also that the position taken by Glass was a direct challenge to the criticism of the measure came only from those who want to make a "pork barrel" out of it. The Virginian senator has been called a "pork barrel legislator" during his long service in congress.

Hearings Begin Today. Closed hearings on the $4,880,000 bill will begin before the committee tomorrow, with Rear Admiral Christian J. Peoples, chief of the procurement division of public works, and Daniel W. Bell, acting budget director, as the witnesses.

Committee members said there was no mention of calling Secretary Ickes and Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, but that they might be asked to testify later. The feeling against Ickes which caused an administration promise that he would not administer the work relief bill has been manifest also in the senate.

The move for open hearings was led by Senator Hale, of Maine, ranking republican member of the committee. He was acting under directions from the party conference last week. His motion was voted down without a record vote by the overwhelming democratic majority on the committee.

Senator Byrd, democrat, South Carolina, explained the committee had voted against open hearings because no appropriation bill has ever been considered except in executive session. He explained also there was no room in the committee room for spectators.

Republican opposition to the bill centered today on the additional powers granted to the president, rather than to the proposal for a lump sum appropriation.

To Ask Statement. Party leaders indicated they would not fight for allocation of the fund, but would merely ask for a statement of how it would be spent.

They concentrated, however, on the language which they said would extend the president's power far beyond the limits of unrestricted spending of the money.

Provisions in the bill, they said, would permit the chief executive to buy up any corporation, give out money to anyone, or even to break up a strike.

Administration leaders predicted the measure would go through without serious changes, although they expected some changes.

The assertion that Hopkins was "wasteful" in administering relief was made on the floor of the house today by Representative Fulmer, democrat, South Carolina.

"I would hate to think that the president was a party to the wasteful method employed under Hopkins' relief administration," he said.

GIBSON BANK ROBBED OF $10,000 IN CASH

Bandits Make Raid as Cashier and Sheriff Sleep Near By

GIBSON, Ga., Jan. 23.—(P)—While Cashier E. E. Griffith slept peacefully at home on one side of the bank and Sheriff Kitchens on the other side, yegmen ran a tube from an acetone tank across the street early this morning, leisurely burned open the vault, and secured $10,000 in cash and securities from the Bank of Gibson.

A nickel, dropped as they left, was all that the cashier found when he opened the bank this morning.

Six or more men were believed to have been in the party. The son of Sheriff Kitchens and a party of friends, returning home from a trip to Milledgeville, stumbled over the tubes in the street. Grumbling about "careless kids," they went in and hurried to bed.

ROBBERS GET $4,000 FROM TWO MACON SAFES

MACON, Ga., Jan. 23.—(P)—Safe-blowers robbed the safes of the Southern Bell Telephone Company and the Union Dry Goods Company, here, early this morning and escaped with approximately $4,000, according to police reports.

In the telephone office they tried to manipulate the dialer after knocking out the combination and failing to do that used a powerful explosive to gain entrance. Between $800 and $1,800 was taken. It was learned.

At the Union Dry Goods Company a vault was entered by the gang and the inner safe blown open. Then the safe-blowers carried off a 900-pound money chest that was inside the second safe and which contained about $2,500.

REV. HOLMES SPEAKS AT COLUMBUS CHURCH

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 23.—Rev. B. R. Holmes, founder and president of the Holmes Institute in Atlanta, in a sermon at St. John A. M. E. church Sunday on "Racial and Educational Consciousness" declared the colored people give less for the support of educating their race than any other group of people.

"Christian education is the medium through which the race can be developed to be safe leaders. There is not enough stress being placed upon industrial education. Most of the colored institutions are educating the colored youth away from work. All work is honorable. If you prepare yourself to master your job," continued Dr. Holmes. "More money should be given to institutions which train the colored students how to work, and do it well," he said.

Rev. Holmes spoke at St. James and St. Mark A. M. E. church Sunday, urging the audience to be loyal to the laws of the state.

State Deaths And Funerals

J. R. RIDDLE. MONTZUMA, Ga., Jan. 23.—J. R. Riddle, 60, well-known citizen of Montzuma, died Saturday following a week's illness of pneumonia. Mr. Riddle was a native of Iowa, Ala., and came to Montzuma in 1899. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. The body was taken to Lenoir, Ala., for interment Sunday.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Anna B. Robinson, of Ashland, Ala., and three sons, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Riddle, Jr., of Ashland, Ala., and three daughters, Mrs. Marion Johnson, of Wilkesboro, Ga.; Mrs. Alma Riddle, of Pratt, Fla.; and Miss Willie Mae Riddle, of Ashland, Ala.

A. T. WHITFIELD. ROME, Ga., Jan. 23.—Funeral services for Archie Taylor Whitfield, 25, who died Friday at a local hospital, were held Sunday from Fellowship Baptist church, with Rev. Percy Peacock officiating. He is survived by his father, Henry Whitfield, one daughter, Miss Frances Whitfield, and one brother, Malcolm Whitfield, all of Rome.

E. F. TILLMAN. VALDOSTA, Ga., Jan. 23.—Funeral services were held here today for E. F. Tillman, one of the city's pioneer businessmen, who died at his home here yesterday after a lengthy illness.

Services were held at the First Methodist church, of which he was a member, a lifelong member. Interment was in Sunset Hill cemetery.

R. GREEN BLEWETTER. FORT VALLEY, Ga., Jan. 23.—The funeral of R. Green Blewetter, 73, prominent farmer and peach grower of Fort Valley, who died Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Blewetter, in Oglethorpe, was conducted from the First Baptist church, of which he was a member, Sunday afternoon.

He is survived by his wife, who was the former Miss Mary Fagan, two daughters, Mrs. J. H. Blewetter, and Mrs. J. A. Blewetter, and one son, Mr. J. H. Blewetter, clerk of Peach superior court, who died in office a year ago. His sisters and brothers who survive are Mrs. Nannie Wilson, Perry; Mrs. Elma Colquhoun, Monroe, La.; Mrs. Walter Blewetter, Law Blumber, Monroe, La.; and Crum Blewetter, Magnolia, Ark.

KNOX CHASTAIN. ACWORTH, Ga., Jan. 23.—Knox Chastain, 65, a pioneer citizen of Acworth, died at his home in Acworth Friday night after a long illness.

He was born in Powder Springs and came to Acworth in 1907. He was a member of the Baptist church for 50 years.

He is survived by one son, James Chastain, one daughter, Mrs. Raymond Atwater, Acworth, and one sister, Mrs. Edna Williams, Barnwell, S. C.

She is survived by three daughters, two sons, two sisters and one brother.

MORRIS ATTAWAY. MADRAS, Ga., Jan. 23.—Morris Attaway, 38, a lifelong resident of this community, died at his home here yesterday afternoon. He was one of the few remaining Confederate veterans of this county, and until a short time ago was quite active.

Funeral services will be conducted at Mount Gilead Primitive Baptist church, which he was a member. Interment will take place at Cedar Creek cemetery. Elder Glad West, of Atlanta, will conduct the services.

BARNESVILLE PARTY HURT IN ACCIDENT

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Jan. 23.—Mrs. Jennie Woodall, 77, was severely injured Sunday in an automobile accident on Route Co. Columbus, and several other members of her family were painfully hurt.

Grady Woodall, of Griffin, his wife and son, and Miss Mary Woodall, of Barnesville, when the car in which they were riding struck a sand bed near Talbotton and overturned. Mrs. Woodall received several broken ribs and cuts about the face and head. Mr. Woodall had a badly cut hand, and Miss Mary Woodall received a gash on the head. Others were badly bruised and shocked.

DR. O. RALPH HARLOW IS SPEAKER AT BERRY MOUNT BERRY. Jan. 23.—Decriing the evils of war and urging efforts to bring about world peace, Dr. O. Ralph Harlow, professor of religious education and social science at Smith College, Northampton, Massachusetts, spoke at Berry College Saturday.

Quoting Secretary of War Derr's speech on Armistice day at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in which he said, "Nobody won the last war. Everybody lost in the stupid, colossal blunder it was," Dr. Harlow asked the students and audience to think independently, to consider ways to wards peace.

OFFICER ATTACHES VARIETY OF OBJECTS

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 23.—(P)—Sheriff J. B. Bowden, of municipal court in wondering whether he is supposed to be an officer of the law or a pet shop proprietor.

Within the past two months attachment proceedings have brought in to the sheriff's custody a gila monster and 41 raccoons, dogs, greyhounds and whippets. After some trouble, he succeeded in disposing of both.

IF YOU EAT STARCHES MEATS, SWEETS Read this:

They're All Necessary Foods—But All Acid-Forming. Hence Most of Us Have "Acid Stomach" at Times. Easy Now to Relieve.

Medical authorities now tell us that much of the so-called "indigestion" from which so many of us suffer is really acid indigestion. A condition brought on by the acid-forming part of our diet.

Starches, meats, sweets, too much of such necessary foods form excess acids—felt in annoying pain, "gas" after eating.

But there is now a simple way to relieve this, as your doctor will tell you... often in minutes!

All you do is take a little Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals. This acts almost at once to neutralize the stomach acidity that brings on the trouble. You have fewer headaches, upsets, and pain. You "forget you have a stomach!"

Try this just once! Take either the familiar liquid "Phillips'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. But be sure you get the Genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia.

GERMAN WILTS ON WITNESS STAND

Harried by Questions, Bruno Shouts "Stop That" at Prosecutor.

of hostility and the palpable circus effects injected by the visiting celebrities and out-of-towners, gay, tittering—the women in pink coats, the men in wise-cracking lot.

There were times when he seemed on the brink of an admission that would settle definitely the question of his guilt in the minds of the eight men and four women jurors who sat through the long day, listening tensely to the unbroken interrogation.

To Return Today. When court adjourned he still was on the stand, and he will return tomorrow for perhaps another half day of examination.

Wilentz, dark, sleek, cocksure of manner, had started his questioning today with the awkward determination of "breaking" Hauptmann. There were moments, indeed, when his prediction seemed about to come true, but Hauptmann, though weakened by the attack, clung desperately to his story.

Again and again Wilentz, manifestly impatient, called on Hauptmann to "tell the truth." At a point when it seemed to everybody that Wilentz had victory in his hands he lost the opportunity.

Hauptmann appeared to be weakening. He had admitted he lied to District Attorney Foley last September 19 about the notation of Dr. Condon's address and telephone number on a piece of trimming in the Hauptmann closet.

"This is funny to you, isn't it? You are having a lot of—?" Wilentz began. "No, absolutely not," Hauptmann replied.

"You are having a lot of fun with me, aren't you?" the prosecutor demanded. "No."

Smiling Charged. "Well," Wilentz said, "you are doing very well; you are smiling at me every five minutes."

"No," Hauptmann protested. "You think you are a big shot, don't you?"

A. No, certainly you shouldn't. You think you are bigger than everybody, don't you?"

A. No. But I know I am innocent. Wilentz suggested that Hauptmann had a lot of will power.

"I feel innocent, and I am innocent, and that keeps me the power to stand up," he said.

"Lying when you swear to God that you will tell the truth," said Wilentz, passionately. "Telling lies doesn't mean anything."

"Stop that!" shouted Hauptmann. "Didn't you swear to untruths in the Bronx courthouse?" demanded Wilentz.

"Stop that!" Hauptmann repeated. "Didn't you swear to untruths in the courthouse? Didn't you lie under oath time and time again? Didn't you?"

"I did not."

Admits Lying. Hauptmann then admitted he had lied when he was arrested and questioned about a $20 ransom bill in his wallet.

"Yes," cried Wilentz. "Lies, lies, lies, about Lindbergh ransom money, isn't that right?"

"Well," Hauptmann retorted, "you lied to me, too."

"Yes—when and where?"

"Right in the courtroom here."

On another occasion he admitted Hauptmann had lied when he wrote to the family of Fisch, his dead German friend and former partner, saying that Fisch owed him $5,500.

Q. I know you did not, but you know Isador Fisch didn't copy your handwriting, don't you?"

A. I don't know.

Hauptmann was dogged in his denial that sketches of a ladder and a window, drawn on the pages of his little account book, were his work.

Go Through Notebook. Wilentz first went through the notebook page by page. Some parts of it Hauptmann said he had written; others he denied.

Q. There are some drawings here. Are they yours?"

A. No, they are not mine. Q. These drawings aren't yours?"

A. No, they are not mine. Q. How about that picture of that window? That isn't yours? The drawing of that window?"

A. That should be a window? Q. You can't make out what it is?"

A. No. Q. But you can make out the ladder there with the dower pin?"

A. What is it, a picture of a book shelf or what?"

A. No, I don't know what it is.

Continuing with the notebook, Wilentz had Hauptmann acknowledge that subsequent accounts were in the prisoner's writing. There were more drawings, and Hauptmann said a "little child used to draw pictures and play inside and be put in."

Strikes at Story. Wilentz struck early at the story about Fisch and his shoe-box and injected the dead tourist's name at several points in the cross-examination.

When Hauptmann said he didn't count the money in the shoe box, he found it, the attorney-general demanded:

"The reason you didn't count it was because you knew didn't you?"

"I didn't know anything—I didn't"—Hauptmann began.

Q. Thousands of dollars lying around of strange money, you find it and you don't even count it, is that right?"

A. It was hard to count.

Q. Hard to count it.

A. Because it was all wet.

Hauptmann Becomes Confused Under Wilentz' Barrage

Bruno Richard Hauptmann's chief test came when he faced his chief prosecutor, Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, of New Jersey, on the witness stand. The German became muddled and confused during part of the cross-examination.

Q. You take a few ones out and count the dry ones?"

A. Yes. "You wrote that, didn't you?" Wilentz demanded.

"Wait a minute now," cried Wilentz. My God, don't you tell anybody the truth?"

Objections Sustained. Defense attorneys were on their feet and Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, presiding, sustained their objection.

But Hauptmann admitted he had not informed Fisch's family of the "discovery" of the ransom shoebox in his closet, nor of the $14,000 in ransom goldbacks which he says he took out of it and hid in his garage.

He had forgotten, he said, about the shoebox.

Strung at defense hints that the dead Isador might have been the ransom note writer, imitating Hauptmann's own hand, Wilentz earlier drew from the accused man that he met Fisch "after March the first" in 1932. March 1 was the date of the kidnapping.

Turns To Ransom Notes. At once the attorney-general turned to the ransom notes. Hauptmann said "it looks like" someone imitated his handwriting.

"There are some figures in the handwriting looks like mine," said the witness.

Q. It looks like somebody copied it, isn't that right?"

A. Yes. Q. All right. Now before March 1, 1932, Isador Fisch didn't know you and you didn't know him, did you?"

A. I didn't know him, but I don't know if he didn't know me.

Q. You didn't send him any letters, did you, before March 1, 1932, did you?"

A. No, I did not.

Q. He wasn't in your house before March 1, 1932, was he?"

A. No. Q. So Isador Fisch didn't write the ransom notes, did he?"

A. I never said that.

Q. It took two weeks for you to count the money?"

A. I suppose so.

He also said he did not tell his wife about the "find."

"Absolutely not. Why should I make my wife excited about it?" he asked.

Court Convened. Court convened at 10:01 a. m. when Justice Trenchard mounted the bench and rapped for order.

The jury was polled, after Justice Trenchard rebuked the audience for loud bursts of conversation. With a little, firm step, Hauptmann went back to the witness stand.

Inspector Lewis J. Bruckman, of the Bronx police, and William E. Frank, federal investigator, who traced Hauptmann's accounts, were present near the state table to check the defendant's testimony as the cross-examination developed.

Q. Mr. Defendant, have you ever been in an airplane?"

A. Yes, in Los Angeles.

Hauptmann looked swiftly around the room. His face was set as he looked at Wilentz. His voice was colorless as he made answer to the first questions in sing-song tones.

Wilentz's voice was low, encouraging.

Q. That was a pleasure trip?"

A. Yes. Q. On that trip went your wife and Kleopatraburg (Hans Kleopatraburg, a friend) were with you?"

A. Yes.

Q. Were you on a boat anywhere on that trip?"

A. I can't remember. (He shook his head.)

Q. Do you remember paying 75 cents apiece for a ride on a boat, for yourself, Mrs. Hauptmann and Kleopatraburg, altogether $22.50?"

A. Yes, I can't remember.

Q. But you won't say you didn't?"

A. I can't remember.

Q. Keep Account of Expenses.

Q. You kept an account of your expenses on this trip to California?"

A. Yes.

Q. (Groceries, and everything?)

A. Yes.

Q. You kept accounts every day since you arrived in this country?"

A. Not the first day. In a year or two.

Q. Once you started keeping accounts, you kept every item?"

A. Yes, every item.

Q. You kept the money your wife earned, the money you earned, the money people owed you?"

A. Yes.

Q. And at the end of the year you figured up what you and your wife were worth?"

A. Yes.

Q. You were always very careful about figures?"

A. Well, I'd say so.

Q. You're always been very careful about money?"

A. Yes.

Q. You were trying to accumulate money for your family right up to 1931?"

A. Yes.

Q. When you put the figures in the book, they were correct—truthful figures?"

A. Yes.

Q. Them figures are true but I left some of them out of it."

A. Whatever the figures are in the book, that is honest and true?"

A. Yes.

Q. You don't want to change that, Mr. Hauptmann?"

A. I have nothing besides, and my wife would not know.

Q. Oh, you were hiding it on your wife?"

Fischer objected.

Lindbergh Watches Intently. Lindbergh, seated directly in front of the witness behind the state's table, looked carefully at the accused man.

Wilentz's voice had raised gradually during the questioning, until it reached a shrill, insistent pitch that marked Friday's cross-examination.

Q. You were riding a lot of things from your wife?"

A. Yes.

Q. When did you first meet Mrs. Henckel?"

A. In 1932.

Q. Wilentz drove forward with queries on the relationship with Mrs. Henckel, the defendant resorted more frequently to his "can't remember" phrase.

Q. Was Mr. Henckel there the first time?"

A. Her sister was—

Q. I'm asking you about Mr. Henckel?"

A. I can't remember.

Q. Don't you know that two weeks after you met her she introduced you to her husband?"

A. I guess that's correct.

Q. That was when your wife was in Europe, is that right?"

A. Yes.

Q. Wilentz clapped his hands and said briskly, "Now let's get back to the accounts."

Bruno's Hands Clapped. Hauptmann's hands were tightly clasped. Mrs. Hauptmann had lowered her head.

Q. Let me ask you were you happy when you found the $14,000 in gold? Did you laugh?"

Q. Did you call your wife, did you tell her wife?"

A. No.

Q. Were you honest with your wife when you found the money?"

A. Yes.

Q. Didn't she work and slave for you?"

A. The $14,000 had nothing to do with my wife.

Wilentz told him to speak up for the jury could not hear. His voice was firmer when he repeated, "It is."

Do you remember the experts testifying to the "g's" and the "n's" being transposed?

A. There were so many talking, I can't remember.

Q. I call your attention to the word "i-i-t-t-h" and "r-i-g-t-h."

Hauptmann looked at the chart. Q. Now you had a habit of doing that "i-i-t-t-h" and "r-i-g-t-h"?

A. Habit?

Q. Yes, every time there was a "g" in the word?

Q. Never did it all?

A. Maybe I made a mistake some, I don't write often.

Defense Counsel Frederick A. Pope interrupted, asserting the comparison with the chart enlargement should not be made, since Hauptmann did not make the chart.

The defendant was allowed to answer.

Oh, but you write a great deal, don't you, keep a bookkeeping ledger, write long letters?"

A. Only rarely.

Q. Did you ever tell Mr. Brent not to tell if your wife asked where you were a certain night?"

A. No.

Wilentz produced a German-American dictionary, which Hauptmann turned to the word "Curtiss Wright," said the witness.

Q. Spell it, the last word.

Wilentz then pointed out the ransom word "r-i-g-t-h," and asked Hauptmann if "r-i-g-t-h" was not spelled the same.

There was no answer.

Woolcott Says Journalists Expected Bruno Confession

Few From Fourth Estate Arose at Dawn With Fond Expectations; Author Chides Edna Ferber

By ALEXANDER WOOLCOTT.

(Copyright, 1935, for The Constitution.)

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 28.—

Many avid spectators and even a few incorrigibly romantic journalists rose at crack of dawn and hurried to Flemington in the fond expectation that at some point in the day's proceedings

Bruno Hauptmann would crack under the strain, leap wild-eyed to the feet and cry out in accents unforgettable, "Question me no further, I can bear it no longer. I committed the crime. I did kill the Lindbergh baby."

So naive an expectation could be nourished only on a diet of Broadway melodrama rather than on any actual experience in our criminal courts.

What these disappointed ones did see and hear was a shifty and inarticulate prisoner stubbornly persisting from very necessity in his own despatched patchwork of a story under the withering barrage of a not conspicuously brilliant exhibition of the art of cross-examination and the art of a masterpiece of that art would have produced much more.

Whenever the state builds up, piece by piece, so damning a case as in indict in the circumstantial evidence accumulated by the investigators of the Hopewell mystery, the failure of the accused to take the stand—as happened, for example, in the trial of Charles Becker—is almost certain to be construed by the jury as a tacit confession.

Such a failure on Hauptmann's part would have been so construed. But from his submission of himself to cross-examination, the prosecution could scarcely have hoped to gain admission of guilt, and could have counted only on exposing to the glare of repetition the flimsiest stretches in the fabric of the prisoner's story, placing him again and again in these uncomfortable positions which would afford the jury the best view of his writhling.

Thus, when it came out that he had decided after all no longer to admit that he had jotted down the fatal memo of the Condon address and telephone number found in Haupt-mann's bedroom, the attorney-general made him keep repeating his retraction until he grew visibly venomous with his hate of the man who was so pitilessly rubbing it in.

Trenchard "Old Nurse."

Then, too, I think the attorney-general may well have felt that Hauptmann lost ground every time he ventured to indulge in one of those puzzling smiles of his which constitute so strange a phenomenon in this trial

—curious smiles which seem to be compounded in equal parts of complacency and contempt. One particularly chill specimen moved Mr. Wil-cents to ask Hauptmann to explain them. Why all this inner mirth? Why these evidences of secret amusement? Hauptmann was obviously happy at the opportunity to ascribe his smiles to a sustaining consciousness of his own innocence.

During this session the courtroom at Flemington continued to present

many of the less elevating aspects of a six-day bicycle race. A visitor from Mars or even from some civilized community on this very planet would find nothing in this trial more puzzling than Judge Trenchard's plaintive protest from the bench on this subject. In the reproachful tone of gentle and slightly distracted old nurse who really doesn't know what her dratted charges will be up to next, he said: "I should think that those persons in court who have no business here would at least have the decency to keep quiet."

If among those listening to this might rebuke there was any visitor from England, he must have heard what manner of judge would have suffered so long the overcrowding of the courtroom.

"Take-Chance Girls"
Prove Hit at Atlanta
 When the Atlanta theater billed its "Take-Chance Girls" as a "fantastic, scandalizing revue of songs and laughter," the proverbial rain was hit squarely on the head. The entire production was conceived by Manager Chuck Gregory, and he was fortunate in obtaining such a group of burlesquers to put his brain child on the boards.

The four harmonizers, Leon, Earl, Dome and Mac, cut loose with some pre-voiced harmony with their well-matched quartet. The dance team of Bordine and Carroll gives a pleasing presentation of acrobatic dancing.

"Night in Monte Carlo"
Draws Mosquito Crowd
 "Night in Monte Carlo," cabaret, carnival and dance sponsored by Yvonne Temple, attracted a large crowd to the Shrine mosque last night. It will be given every night this week, with doors opening at 8 o'clock and the various forms of entertainment and dancing continuing until 1 o'clock.

An elaborate floor show, featuring many of the best known dancers, singers and comedians in this part of the country has given each night. This is produced by the Semon-Holmes dance studio.

"DON'T WAIT THE WAY I DID!"

How many women have felt the same way, once they've learned about the joy and comfort that Midol tablets offer the sufferer from periodic pain? Midol will always relieve this suffering, and will often bring complete comfort and poise.

Why postpone the comfort from Midol? Why give in to regular pain, if such pain may be proven needless? Midol acts fast, is effective several hours, but it's not a narcotic. It is a special medicine, for this special purpose, and specialists can tell you how well it works! You'll see it on the druggist's counter—or, just ask for Midol. Do this today, so that you will have it when needed.

RUSSELL CONCEDES DEFEAT BUT CONTINUES ATTACK
 BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
 Taking a parting shot at the adherence to the World Court protocol, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., of Georgia, today made a smashing attack on the court, denouncing it as an instrument of war and not an agency of peace. The Georgian followed Senators Johnson, of California, and Long, of Louisiana, both of whom pleaded with their colleagues not to vote to join the court if they did not wish to force this country into the League of Nations.

250,000 Dixie Farmers Instructed in 1934, Vocational Leaders Told at Meeting Here

Here are prominent educators who attended the opening session of the vocational agricultural leaders' conference Monday at the Wincoff hotel. Front row, left to right, are J. A. Linke, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. M. D. Collins, Georgia school superintendent, and R. D. Maltby, of Washington, D. C. Back row, left to right, F. W. Lathrop, of Washington, D. C.; W. S. Newman, of Richmond, Va.; Dr. J. T. Wheeler, of Athens; D. M. Clements, of Nashville, and R. E. Cammack, of Montgomery, Ala. The conference will continue through Friday. Photo by Constitution staff photographer.

A quarter of a million southern farmers received expert instruction in vocational agriculture during 1934. Dr. J. T. Wheeler, of Athens, told vocational leaders Monday at the opening session of their seventeenth annual conference at the Wincoff hotel.

He outlined the accomplishments of the southern group of 12 states, his report revealing that 250,000 farmers had been instructed on farm problems, particularly on how they have been affected and assisted by the national recovery program. He said many new vocational agricultural departments were added to high schools in Georgia in 1934.

Dr. Wheeler's address preceded general discussion Monday afternoon on the problems which face vocational teachers in reaching out-of-school youths between the ages of 16 and 26.

W. A. Ross, of Washington, D. C., led the talk and pointed out there are 3,000,000 such young farmers in the United States. The agriculturalists are seeking ways of educating youths of these ages.

Ten thousand boys in Georgia are studying vocational agriculture, while more than 100,000 are taking part in this type of education in the south, it was said.

Addresses and discussion concerning teacher-technique of the agricultural instructor, and the general problems of vocational agriculturalists are scheduled on the program of the conference, which will continue through Friday.

Some of the speakers are Roy E. Cammack, of Alabama; Dr. Roy Davenport, of Louisiana; Dr. Roy Thomas, of North Carolina; Paul Haines, of Texas, and Dr. Wheeler, R. W. Newman, of Richmond, Va., presided over the opening session Monday morning.

Officials of the Georgia Mayors' Association tonight will map a campaign of legislative war at a dinner to be tendered them by Mayor Key, Atlanta, president. The affair will be staged at the Henry Grady hotel and will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Key, Mayor Thomas Gamble Savannah, a vice president, and Mayor Zack Arnold, Fort Gaines, chairman of the legislative committee of the mayors' organization, held a preliminary meeting at Key's office Monday.

A joint meeting of the mayors and the Georgia Association of County Commissioners will be held at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Henry Grady hotel at which it is expected a united attack will be launched on two legislative measures which members of the mayors' organization have characterized as "homicide for cities of Georgia."

The two provide for exemption from all ad valorem taxation—city, county and state—owner-occupied homes up to the value of $5,000, and a limitation of 10 mills on city and county taxation.

Arnold Monday conferred with legislators and senators in the 1935 meeting of the Georgia legislature and said he was told that the entire legislative program sponsored by the mayors will be introduced some time this week.

The association plans to have civic and commercial clubs join it in urging legislative measures to pass legislation designed to give "cities of Georgia a square deal."

Major legislative measure the association sponsors:

1. Home rule, or "local self-government by their own people, with complete elimination of local measures from the state legislature's calendar."
2. Exemption of gasoline used by municipalities from the state fuel oil tax.

3. State highway department maintenance of city streets forming parts of state or federal highways.

4. Clarification of laws granting free business licenses to war veterans so that only indigent veterans may qualify.

5. Authorization for municipal licensing of automobiles and automobile drivers.

6. Constitutional amendment to permit issuance of bonds in excess of present limits to construct or buy utility systems, these bonds not to be a lien on general revenues.

7. Thoroughgoing tax law revision, "to afford substantial relief for the local taxpayer."

8. Clarification of tax laws so that only those agricultural products raised in this state shall be tax-free.

9. Legislation to curb crime.

10. Concerted action with cities in other states for interpretation of NRA codes affecting municipal purchases.

MAIS INFORMED GIVEN 35-YEAR TERM
 RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Arthur "Dutch" Maish, admitted participant in the holdup-murder of E. M. Hubbard and who turned state's evidence in the trials of Walter Legett and Robert Maish, now awaiting execution, today was sentenced to 35 years in the Virginia penitentiary.

RICHARD VILLARD, INVENTOR, PASSES

Atlantan Worked Out Method of Threading Wire in Cables.

Richard Henry Villard, inventor, died Monday night at his residence at 730 Ponce de Leon place, N. E., after a short illness. He was 78.

He had resided in Atlanta for many years and was the son of a physician who practiced here during the War Between the States.

Mr. Villard was credited with having worked out more than a dozen important inventions, among which is the method used in threading wires through long telegraph or telephone cables.

He was in charge of the work when Piedmont park lake was dug many years ago and in preparation for the Cotton States Exposition which was held there.

Friends said Mr. Villard's life had been varied and colorful. He devoted most of his time to his inventions but saw many of them stolen from him before he made them paying propositions.

He resided here for years with his late sister, Mrs. John W. Heidt, who died about 10 years ago.

The funeral will be held Wednesday in Griffin and further arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

He is survived by the following nephews and nieces: Mrs. A. E. Calhoun, John V. Heidt, Emanuel V. Heidt, Woodward Villard and Harry Villard, of Atlanta; Colonel James V. Heidt, U. S. A., of Panama; Colonel Grayson V. Heidt, U. S. A., of San Francisco; Colonel G. V. Heidt, U.

—AND MY EYES AREN'T TIRED AT ALL

Grandmother's eyes, it's true, aren't as young as they used to be. She has been wearing glasses for years, but her eyes will be good for a long time yet—if her home is one where up-to-date thought has been given to proper lighting. Under proper illumination, even sewing, one of the most exacting of all seeing jobs, becomes what it should be—pure pleasure—to the devoted needleworker.

Three-fourths of all people over the age of fifty suffer from defective vision. If your eyes trouble you, consult a good oculist and take his advice. But whether your eyes are good or bad, old or young, you need good lighting.

And just what is good lighting? Nature created our eyes for outdoor seeing. The ideal light for reading is found under the shade of a tree or on the porch on a sunny day. New measuring instruments which have been developed show that here you would have about 500 units of light. If you sit at a window indoors on a bright day, you get about 100 light units. But what happens when night comes and we turn on the lights?

It sounds almost unbelievable, but we find the average person struggling along with about five units of light. And many people have only two units! Of course this is inadequate; it is the reason why so many people suffer from eye strain.

Does your home have proper lighting? For all members of the family? Safeguarding eyesight by correcting poor lighting conditions is one investment which pays big dividends.

One of our lighting specialists will gladly come to your home to measure your light, accurately, and make recommendations based on wide experience. Just 'phone our nearest office, or paste the coupon below on a post card and mail.

Study Club Members Decide To Sew For Osgood Sanders Nursery Children

By Sally Forth.

THE calendar is swinging around to the Lenten season, when women give their time to philanthropic undertakings which result in benefiting less fortunate than they. This fact brings to the fore the decision of members of the Study Club to meet once monthly and sew for children at the Osgood Sanders nursery, the plan being proposed at Mrs. John Duncan's home quite recently. It was Mrs. Duncan who proposed the plan which goes into effect next Friday at the meeting to be held at Mrs. George Campbell's Seventeenth street residence.

Mrs. Duncan is chairman of the sewing committee of the Osgood Sanders nursery, and since taking over the chairmanship has been actively engaged in making plans to supply clothes for the hundred-odd children of working mothers who are cared for at the nursery day school. Organized three years ago, with the names of prominent Atlanta matrons on the roster, the members gave themselves up to serious study, but now they have changed their tactics and will devote their time to sewing hereafter.

Members of the club who will participate in this helpful charity are Mesdames Will Akers, John Duncan, S. B. Ramey, W. R. Holmes, Frank Alcorn, Hinton Longino, Gilbert Beers, Charles Hammond, Street Russell, Fort Adams, Frank Henry, George Campbell, Jack Pearson and James Budd.

DOLLY DALRYMPLE, who writes a clever column for the Birmingham Age-Herald, talked on Sunday about those former Atlantans, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregg. These erstwhile natives are such a popular and beloved couple that Atlanta has never relinquished her claim on them, and it is always a source of gratification when they return even for a brief visit. They are here now to attend the marriage on Wednesday evening of their cousin, Miss Mary Adair Howell, to Francis Marion Bird, which is listed among the most brilliant events of the winter social season, and in which their lovely sub-deb daughter, Miss Betty Gregg, will act as bridesmaid.

It is not at all strange that Dolly shares Sally's opinions about the Greggs, and experiences the same sense of regret at having to give them up as residents of her town. For this reason Sally feels fully justified in reprinting Dolly's exact words on the subject:

"Society will not seem the same without that charming couple, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregg, when they remove to New York to make their future home. Ever since they came here from Atlanta two years ago, they have had and held as many friends as any people I know, and their departure is genuinely regretted."

"Always gracious and lovely to look upon, Mrs. Gregg both as hostess and guest has been sought for the most fashionable functions, with her charming husband and by her genuine sweetness she has been extravagantly admired—a lovely friend, one who will be inexpressibly missed."

"And not only will Mr. and Mrs. Gregg be missed but their adorable daughter, Betty, who has been such a popular belle with the younger set. In fact, the entire family will leave a vacancy here which will not easily be filled.

"With their departure will go cordial wishes for their happiness and success in their new home, to which they will be ornaments of the most attractive kind."

WHEN a luxurious liner steams from New York harbor at an early date toward the topaz blue waters of the Mediterranean for a leisurely cruise, listed among the cosmopolitans lining the rail for a farewell glimpse of the homeland will be a group of Atlanta women who plan to spend several weeks on foreign shores.

Sally, in meditative mood, ponders the whys and wherefores of such a trip. Just what is it that prompts the travel urge. Maybe it's gypsy blood and itching feet that causes one to embark for ports across the sea. Perhaps it's the lure of far-off places and "old, forgotten far-off things" that causes one to desert the native shores.

Romance, too, may be blamed for the tripping for many American maids and matrons who seek to capture foreign scalps beyond the ocean to add to their domestic collection. Then, too, there is the cultural and educational advantages when one craves learning and the association with gentlefolk in other lands.

Perhaps this desire for sailing places in the yonderland is purely social. Especially is this true when midday is clothes conscious, as it seems in the case of one charming Atlantian who is a member of the Atlanta group sailing on the cruise in February. 'Tis said that 22 stunning new evening gowns have been added to her wardrobe for this particular trip. Who said the depression still invades Atlanta?

At-Nal-Ta Club.

The At-Nal-Ta Club of the Supreme Forest Woodman's Circle met Friday evening at the home of Misses Myrtle Hardy, 1384 Beecher street. Those attending were Misses Jewel Gauding, Elane Yokely, Darlene Moon, Juanita Graden, Elizabeth Copeland, Mrs. Ruth Bowers, Mrs. Emma Brooks, Mrs. Margaret Lanier, Robert Smith and Miss Myrtle Hardy.

Officers were elected as follows: Miss Juanita Graden, president; Miss Elane Yokely, secretary, and Mrs. Margaret Lanier, treasurer. An open discussion planned many activities for the At-Nal-Ta Club. The next meeting date will be announced later.

MILLS OF THE GODS

By Melville Baker and John S. Kirkland.

WHAT WAS HAPPENING? With the "depression" came the gradual rule of the vast Hastings Plow Co. Mary Hastings, whose services were of age, mooned all her children and grandchildren to America from Europe, where they have been squandering the great Hastings fortune. To get them to turn over some of the $50,000,000 trust fund to save the plant and to keep the workers and their wives from starving, the Hastings family, headed by William Hastings, the oldest, became overbearing and devilish threats to him. Devlin is expelled from the meeting and William phones for the police. Later, Jean and Alex, the youngest of the clan, are in an inn drinking. Alex, intoxicated, falls to the floor unconscious. Devlin, present in the room, comes to her aid and carries her to her room. He is the very formal, very proper, very young, sophisticated Jean Hastings helps Devlin escape to his hide-out in the surrounding hills by taking him in his car. Devlin's girl, Sarah, jealous, follows them there and disables her car, forcing the girl to spend the night at the cabin, much against her will. Devlin's story.

ing down the highway on a police motorcycle, taken while an officer was directed elsewhere. Meanwhile, Devlin had dispatched several of his cronies to get shotguns. A frown creased his forehead as he saw Jean's motor edging into the crowd. The mob closed in on the car. Devlin, fighting his way through, finally reached the surrounded girl.

He grabbed Jean's arm in furious anger. "What are you doing down here—trying to commit suicide?"

"Jim," pleaded Jean, "you've got to make them listen! I've got important news. The mills—they're going to open Monday! We've got to tell them."

"Things have gone too far."

"They mustn't go any farther! Once everybody understands—"

"I'm going to get you out of here!" Devlin stared grimly at the gates. He grabbed her angrily. Desperately, Jean struggled.

"No!" she cried. "No!"

Over her shouts came the shrill screams of the police sirens, as the Hastings calvary tore, hell-bent, through the crowd, knocking men down to be trampled by the milling crowd. Only after a fierce struggle were the gates opened and the Hastings entourage led through to the yards. Screaming and yelling, the crowd fell back, frustrated as rifle butts cracked down on skulls.

Willard grabbed Kennedy. "The train's due in 10 minutes! Keep that mob back at any cost! Shoot if you must! Never mind what my niece said over the phone!"

"But she's out there! Your niece—look!"

Jean was still struggling with Devlin. "I'm not going until I've told them!"

"If you don't quit," snapped Devlin, "I'll knock you cold!"

Willard lost control. "Do something! Shoot him down!"

Kennedy whirled. "Give me a quick one, boys! Over their heads!"

The machine guns sprang, a fiery blast streaking across the sky. The mob fell back, fearful, in utter confusion. A huge space was cleared around Jean's car now. Only Devlin, still struggling with Jean, was left.

"The fools! The fools!" muttered Devlin.

"Jim!" cried Jean. "I'm afraid! They're going to kill you!"

"Shut up!"

But now, Alex, having arrived on the motorcycle, was tearing across the clearing towards his sister. He rushed for Devlin as the crowd closed in.

"Let go!" Devlin panted, "You young jackass! I'm not going to hurt her!"

"I'll say you're not!"

"No, Alex," shouted Jean, "stop! It's all right! He's trying to help!"

But even as she cried, Alex's fist lashed out, catching Devlin's jaw. Devlin reeled back. Jean grabbed Alex.

"Don't hit him again! I tell you he was trying to save me!"

Jean rushed over to Devlin, helping him to his feet. Bedlam broke loose in the line of fire, but renewed fury it surged forward. In another moment, Jean, Alex and Devlin would be cut off from the gates.

"Fire! It's their only chance now!" Kennedy nodded grimly. "Let 'em have it, he ordered."

Alex, bewildered, turned just as the command to fire rang out. The horrible realization of what the murder would mean flashed through his mind. He flung himself at the gates.

"No! No! Wait!" he cried frantically.

There was a sharp rat-a-tat as the guns spoke. Alex had spoken too late. Directly in the line of fire, he staggered backward as the bullets struck. The mob scattered in wild confusion. Jean, screaming, ran towards her fallen brother, with Devlin following. The mob was silent now, stunned.

Devlin was the first to recover. He turned to his men. "Come on, let's get him! I don't think there'll be any trouble now."

Alex was carried, badly wounded, into the yards. The crowd was silent until another car, bent in way through the mob, came to a halt. Mary Hastings! The car stopped, and the defiant old figure of Mary made itself evident.

"What's going on? Have you all gone crazy?"

Devlin walked forward. "These people are only after their rights, Mrs. Hastings—and they're going to get them!"

Mary snorted. "If you'd all quiet battling each other around for a few minutes, I'll let you in on some important news. Men, I know you think all the Hastings are a bunch of skunks! They are! I agree with you! I wouldn't trust any of 'em as far as I could throw an elephant, except my niece. And now, I'm telling you, every one of 'em is in the world's going back into these mills—and they're going to open as usual Monday morning."

"That's a lot of hoosey!" came a voice.

Again Mary snorted. "I'll show you! Look! Look! There's your answer!"

In the yards a long freight train crawled slowly along the tracks. "Do you know what's on those cars? Steel! Steel for plows, steel for you to work!"

There was silence for a moment, then the deafening cheers of the mob rose in crescendo. . . . rose high into the heavens to bear the soul of Alex Hastings.

Mary's car was parked on a lonely dirt road. Some distance away stood Jean and Jim Devlin, their hands clasped, their voices low as they talked. Mary watched, a strange light in her eyes.

"No—where are you going?"

"I don't know. Does it matter?" Jean looked into his eyes. "Yes—I'd like to feel in my heart that I've made a day—things might be different."

"They can't ever be."

Jean shrugged. "I'm going to stay here. Grandmother and I understand each other a little better now. She needs me."

"Will I ever see you again?" Jean spoke quietly. "That's up to you."

"How?"

"If you cared enough—and didn't make me wait too long—"

A freight whistle sounded in the distance. Jean smiled regretfully.

"Then perhaps it isn't good-bye, after all," said Jim.

Their lips met in a long kiss, a kiss that could know no parting, a kiss that burned and seared itself into their hearts. Jean's eyes closed. The whistle sounded again—and Jim was gone.

The Hastings car made its way along the road. Mary's eyes closed. She spoke softly. "Don't talk to me about bad times! People have got to eat. Wheat's got to be planted and ploughed—corn, too—and rye and barley. The ground's got to be turned up somehow. It's up to us to do our part—isn't that right, Jeanie? There was no answer. Mary spoke tenderly now. "I know! I know! Her eyes were bright. "Just you and me, now. For a while, anyhow. Is that right, Jeanie?"

Jean sighed, then nodded. There was a low wall in the distance of a vanishing freight train. . . .

THE END.

FAMOUS WATERWAYS.
II—Canals of Europe.

More than any other country in Europe, Holland is famed for her canals. They form a great network, and in some parts are used for transport more than the roads.

Nature shut off the Baltic sea from the North sea with a jut of land almost 300 miles long and in one section, about 100 miles wide. This "jut" is chiefly Denmark, but the lower part of the peninsula belongs to Germany.

If we go back into history we find that a waterway was opened in this region 150 years ago. It joined the two seas by making use of the Eider river, which flows into the North sea. The canal was 26 miles long, but only 51 feet wide and nine feet deep.

The town of Kiel was at one end of it, but it was known as the Holstein canal.

A little more than a century later, a new project was started; and a canal was cut from a point near the mouth of the Elbe river to the Kiel. This was finished in 1808, and was much broader and deeper than the Holstein canal.

The Kiel canal was greatly enlarged during the six years before the outbreak of the World War. It now has a depth of 37 feet and the length is 53 sea miles, or 61 land miles. In a recent year, more than 55,000 ships passed through the Kiel canal.

Senator Susie T. Moore Talks On 'Citizenship' to Clubwomen

In her address before members of the Atlanta Woman's Club on Monday Senator Susie T. Moore stated that "Citizenship for woman is the glorious spark that has long been hidden in a dark and secret place, but now that a window has been opened, it has become a flame that is sweeping onward, burning all bridges of unfairness and inequality. This flame must be guarded well, lest it destroy our ideal, unselfishness, fairness to our fellow men, love of God and an abiding interest in humanity.

"The woman suffrage movement dates back from the middle of the nineteenth century. The system of government of the ancient world was based upon the theory that women could take no part in political matters except when they were reigning queens. After the Revolutionary War, when the convention met in Philadelphia to organize the state, no question around such vehement discussion as that of suffrage. It was finally decided that each state should be free to make its constitution no question as to suffrage, said Senator Moore.

"Citizenship in a democracy carries with it full privileges. It guarantees to us liberty to live our lives without burdensome, arbitrary restrictions. We may speak our thoughts freely, worship as we please, and hold property free from fear of confiscation. This liberty, however, is a liberty under the law. Democracy is dependent upon law and law enforcement for its life. No government can endure unless there is obedience to law. Respect

ADAPT THIS NEW FROCK TO SUIT YOUR TASTE

Be a queen in cotton in this beautifully designed frock. The round yoke and panel front are inevitably becoming, and the ruffle or puff sleeves may be omitted if they're not your type. Or, you may have the sleeves in flaring little wings, simply by omitting the elastic which makes them puff. (See detail sketch.) In any case, it's an adorable frock. The most delightful color combinations are being shown in cottons now—choose unusual, delicate shades or boldly marked patterns in percale, gingham, broadcloth or lawn—they launder and wear well.

Pattern 2175 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 7/8 yards

Clubs Make Plans for Balls In Celebration of St. Valentine

Heralding the approach of the Valentine season is the announcement of several brilliant balls to be given in celebration of this romantic day when all the world bows in reverence to the love saint on February 14. Members of the Piedmont Driving Club will assemble on that evening at the clubhouse for its annual Valentine dinner-dance to be held in the spacious ballroom. Attractive visitors, who will spend a part of February in the south's Gate City, will be central figures in congenial dinner parties. Decorations appropriate of the occasion will prevail and will add brilliant color to the affair.

Announcement is made by the management of the East Lake Country Club that members of this club will celebrate this eventful day at its regular week-end dance on Saturday evening, February 16, instead of February 14. Novel plans are being made for the enjoyment of the several hundred guests who will attend the ball, including a postoffice where love missives will be exchanged by the masked and feminine contingents.

On Saturday evening, February 16, the Druid Hills Golf Club members will assemble for the annual Valentine dinner-dance. The several hundred already being made at this club for this colorful event and several parties have been planned in compliment to visitors.

How to Make Better Cough Remedy Than You Can Buy

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of plain syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your drugstore 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful cough remedy, far better than anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is positively the most effective, quick-acting cough remedy that money could buy. Instantly, you feel it penetrating the air passages. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, and makes breathing easy. You've never seen its equal for prompt, lasting results.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to please you, or money refunded. —(adv.)

Tech, Georgia Coach Conservative as Spring Work Opens

They came on with a rush at Grant field—a golden-clad horde of them—the 1933 spring football practice at Georgia Tech began yesterday.

Over at Athens the same picture was presented, except the technicolor process registered red instead of golden.

The minds of these kids are most resilient—not adamant and enduring as Georgia marble—as some of our professors insist.

At Tech there was a lot of paprika in the air. They have forgot, in so far as it hurts, the nine defeats of last season. This is a new start and they are looking ahead with confidence.

At Athens they have forgot the early defeats of last season and plan to take up where they left off—with victories over Yale and Auburn and Georgia Tech.

There was a surge and a drive to them—yells on the sharp January air.

Spring is when they learn the tricks of the trade—learn how to block and tackle without getting hurt. Spring practice is invaluable. It is good discipline. Good exercise—with no mental strain.

THE "SYSTEMS."

Coach Alexander will start his Jackets off on the style of play which looked so good against Georgia in the final game—a single wing-back. It is, along with the modified punt formation, which it resembles very closely, the strongest running formation in the game.

Tech may not retain this. When the material shapes up a decision will be reached. It will be something new from that which the team used in 1933 and most of 1934.

Harry Mehre, over at Athens, who was the first to modify the Notre Dame system and yet retain its integral features, has made another change this fall. He is seeking more power and a formation which will get the most out of the speed which will be his next fall when those fast young backs start stepping.

There probably is not left anywhere a Notre Dame system of play exactly as Knute Rockne conceived and placed into execution.

Defenses became set for it. Coaches, lacking the material which Rockne had and facing defenses with more knowledge gained from years of experience against the style of play, began to invent changes.

Hunk Anderson brought in an innovation the first year he had the Irish after Rockne's ill-fated death in an airplane plunge.

Frank Thomas, at Alabama, perhaps has gone farther than any other Notre Dame product, shifting his attack into a semi-kick formation from the old Notre Dame "T" formation.

And when all is said and done you may toss all talk of systems out the window. Systems per se are mostly the bunk. Most any one of a half dozen will go if the material is there. The systems are just the cart. It requires the horse, and good clover hay, to make the old cart go.

AND IN CAME DUCKY POND.

Hysterical, if true, that story about Greasy Neale up at Yale. And his first pep talk to the squad which did so well, beating Princeton and Harvard. (But losing to Georgia.) Neale, assistant to Head Coach Ducky Pond, was said to be making his opening pep talk to the Yale squad in this fashion:

"I understand some sissy football has been played up here. That's past history. Football is a he-man's game and that's the way you're going to act. And play. You aren't going to play like sissies, act like sissies or dress like sissies. Especially with these coonskin coats. The first fellow I see wearing one of those coonskin coats is going to catch hell from me."

Just then the door to the Yale dressing room opened and in walked Head Coach Ducky Pond—wearing a coonskin coat!

MR. ARTHUR CUSCADEN.

The voice was very faint over the wires from Daytona Beach.

"Mr. Cuscaden calling," said the girl.

"Say," said Mr. Cuscaden, "the mayor of Daytona Beach wants you to come down here as his guest for the rest of the week and attend the trap shoot."

"Is it warm down there?" I asked.

"Very," said Mr. Cuscaden, who is a trap-shooting fool. (And very good at craps.) It's warm and we want you down."

Whereupon Mr. Cuscaden's ear was blistered with epithets. The idea, calling up a fellow who can't leave town and asking him down to be on the town, so to speak.

The next time Arthur Cuscaden comes here to shoot I am going to sit behind him and yell each time he calls "Pull."

"TILL THE SPOTS COME BACK."

Speaking of Mr. Cuscaden and a game of craps, I recall talking with Ricardo Cortez, that swell fellow who acts for our better films. He was telling a yarn.

"Three colored boys were arrested for shooting dice," he said. "The dice were there in court and the judge said, 'Boys, I am going to let you roll. The boy that shoots a seven goes free. Anything else is the number of days you serve.'"

"So," said Cortez, "the first boy rolls them and gets a ten. 'That's ten days,' said the judge.

"The next one rolled and got a four.

"'Four days,' said the judge.

"The next boy was a waiter in a hotel. He had found some cubes of sugar in his pocket and when it came his turn he palmed the dice and rolled out the cubes which had no spots at all.

"The judge peered over the bench and said, 'Boy, I'm going to put you in jail until the spots come back on those dice.'"

SHORT, SHORT STORIES.

Tom Sanders, whose cartoons have appeared in The Constitution sports section from time to time, has been appointed official state cartoonist for Governor Eugene Talmadge's second term. . . . Bobby Jones explained the psychology of putting better than anyone else when he said, "In trying for long ones you try to sink them and in trying for short ones you try not to miss them." . . . Eleanor Holm Jarrett, who is my personal nomination for the feminine athlete, and almost the only one, with real pulchritude, is breaking more swimming records after marriage than before. Her last was beating the 100-yard backstroke record by four seconds. . . . Tommy Burns, heavyweight champion from 1906 to 1908, is now sales manager for a life insurance company. In some of his publicity he tells of the old fight days and insists Jack Johnson had little courage and that his, Burns' hardest fight was with Jim Flynn, who knocked out Jack Dempsey. . . . The Tilden tennis troupe has grossed $80,000 in less than two months of play.

SEVENTY ANSWER MEHRE'S CALL TO SPRING DRILL

Coach Faces Task With Guard, Tackle and End Positions.

By Bill Ray.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 28.—Coach Harry Mehre, who guides the destinies of the Georgia Bulldog football team, looked anxiously over the squad of 70 aspirants that answered the official call today for the opening of the spring football period of five weeks.

"Guards, tackles, and ends are the three positions that will give us the greatest difficulty in filling," said Coach Mehre this afternoon and it was guards, tackles, and ends, that he was anxiously searching for.

Thirty-one varsity players reported for the official opening of spring practice this afternoon, the freshmen having started a week earlier to get the fundamentals.

Missing from the Bulldogs next fall will be 10 players, lost through graduation. Those graduating are: Cy Grant, right halfback; Jack Griffith, quarterback; Buck Chapman, fullback; Captain Charlie Turberville, end; John West, Charley Opper and Sandy Gunnels, tackles; John Brown and Dave McCullough, guards, and Tom Peterson, center.

LINE IS PROBLEM.

The devastating loss of seven first-class linemen will prove to be the greatest problem for the Georgia coaches. Despite the fact that Grant, Griffith and Chapman are three of the best backfield stars to shine on the Georgia gridiron, Backfield Coach Rex Enright will have a great number of lesser luminaries from which to pick their successors. The line problem which faces Coach Mehre, Tiger Bennett and Vernon (Catfish) Smith is a different story.

Frank Johnson and Leroy Moorehead will return to the starting guards; Allen Shi and Harry Harman will be at tackle positions, and Henry Wagon and Little "Alec" Ashford will hold down the end posts.

Those will be starters. But when the problem of sufficient replacements and reserves for these men arise Coach Mehre will probably walk the floor late at night looking for tackles, guards, and ends. There is always the injury line to worry about. All of the varsity players were out for the first drill this afternoon except Hugh O'Farrell, end, and Johnny Jones, fullback. Others who did not report today were on the excused list.

ON OTHER TEAMS.

Varsity basketball will claim Charley Harrold, end; Frank Johnson, guard, and Harry Harman, tackle. Charley Jacobson, and Alec Ashford, ends, are on the boxing squad.

Minor and major, both of whom are veteran halfbacks, will be excused from the rough work to let injuries received last season get a chance to heal. Co-Captain Bond has an injured shoulder while Minot has a bad leg.

Walter Troutman, freshman end, and Bob Law, sophomore center, will also miss the rough work on account of bad knees. Otis Maffett, freshman end of promise and brother to Herb Maffett, will be out of school this quarter.

Coach Mehre plans to lose little time in the spring squad which will be shaped. Initial rough work will probably start Wednesday, the first scrimmage, next Wednesday. After the squad rounds into good physical shape, they will be scrimmaged twice weekly.

To enable the younger players to become acquainted with the intricacies of the Georgia signal calling system, coaches will hold one night dummy signal drill each week in Memorial Hall.

FIVE WEEKS OF WORK.

The training season will last for five weeks, through March 2, according to plans. Likely prospects for the '35 varsity that reported are:

GUARDS: John McKelvie, Bob Law, Buddy Miller, Brick Stone, W. A. Law, George McDaniel, Pete Tinsley, Billy Grayson, and DeLoach.

TACKLES: Ray Smith, Allen Shi, Frank Davis, Red Milton, Julius Cawart, Hall, Buck Geer, Wilson and Tom Harwood.

ENDS: Asa Candler, Henry Wagon, Lou, Quardell, Ben Bonware, Crenshaw Bonner, Clanton White.

QUARTERS: Charley Treadway, Jeff Heller, Ed Young and Vince O'Farrell.

HALFBACKS: Glenn Johnson, Alf Anderson, Paul Cawart, Andy Roddenberry, Walter Miller, Jim Cawart, Alf Minto and Johnny Bond.

FULLBACKS: Maurice Green, Johnny Jones and Bill Hartman.

Aaroneans Upset By Nordau Team

One of the biggest upsets of the season featured play in the Jewish Alliance basketball league Sunday afternoon, when the Nordau team, which defeated the league leading Aaroneans, 28-26.

The all-round play of Besser and Orenstein was outstanding for Nordau, club, while for the league the fine playing by Gadlin and Kuniavsky was best.

The I. J. club won over the Boys Athletic Club, 27-11. Greenberg, with eight points, led the attack for the winners.

The Straussians practically clinched the Junior league title by defeating the Nordau "B" team, in an overtime game, 24-23. Besser, with nine points, was high for the team. S. Berson, for the losers, shot right.

Tech's New Coaching Staff Walks Into the Picture!

Georgia Tech's spring football practice began yesterday, along with that at other institutions. The Jackets have what amounts to a new staff of assistants for Head Coach W. A. Alexander this year and The Constitution camera caught them as they walked on the field yesterday. Left to right: Roy McArthur, new freshman coach; Mack Tharpe, former freshman coach and now varsity line coach; Coach Alexander, and Bobby Dodd, backfield coach for three years. Tharpe supplants Jack Cannon. And guess what? Coach Mack Tharpe started the season off by being late. They had to wait for him. His face was very red. Photo by Kenneth Rogers.

MSPADEN WINS COAST TOURNEY

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Harold McSpaden, of Kansas City, Kan., won the San Francisco match play open golf tournament here today, defeating Harry Cooper, Chicago veteran, 3 and 2, in their 32-hole final.

After Cooper had squared the match in the 27th hole, McSpaden went back into the lead by winning the 28th with a 25-foot putt. The Kansas made it two up at the 31st and clinched top money of $750 at the 34th hole, which he won with a birdie.

McSpaden played the last seven holes in two under par to take the measure of Cooper, who was one over standard figures for the same distance.

It was the third major tournament of the California winter season won by a two under par, McSpaden's professional. He took first money in the recent Pasadena and Sacramento open tournaments. Cooper received $400 as today's runner-up.

McSpaden had a great battle today with his more experienced rival. After taking a three-putt lead on the first hole of the morning round, increasing it at one time to five up during the last 18, McSpaden finished at the halfway station with a three-hole lead.

Cooper put on a thrilling comeback to square the match on the first nine of the afternoon round. He shot a 64, two under par, to leave the match all even at the end of the 27th hole. The Kansas City golfer met the challenge, however, with subpar golf as they traveled the fairways of the last nine.

Max Baer Offered Fights in Europe

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Calls for Max Baer's services in Italy, France, England and Canada were received here today by the champion heavyweight's manager, Anell Hoffman.

Armand Vincent, of Montreal, telegraphed he would guarantee $5,000 for Baer exhibitions in Montreal and Toronto during March, and wanted to discuss a European series.

Emil Nanny, of Pittsburgh, advised Hoffman he would like to talk business about a proposed European barnstorming tour, but did not mention guarantees.

Nanny already had under consideration a number of proposals from English interests for exhibition bouts, a motion picture and theatrical appearances.

District Tourney Sites Announced

The sites for the Tenth District Basketball tourneys have been decided according to information given by S. F. Burks, district secretary.

The northern division of both B and C groups will meet at Watkinsville, beginning on the night of Tuesday, February 26, while the southern divisions of both groups begin play at Hartman on the afternoon of Wednesday, February 27. The winners of the B divisions will meet at Watkinsville on March 2 for the title while the winners of the C division will compete for the crown in a final game at Hartman on the same night.

Interest is high all over the district. A record number of teams have entered the tourneys. There will be 18 teams competing in the B divisions while 14 teams will battle in the C divisions.

Mr. Ivy Griffin Boosts Three Cracker Rookies

First-Baseman on Atlanta 1919 Team "Goes to Bat" for Young Gerard Lipscomb.

By Jimmy Jones.

In view of the annual wave of hysteria that is being created about the Crackers invading the big leagues for prize rookie ball players, it may be well to quote what Ivy Griffin, former first baseman of the Atlanta club, had to say regarding a few of those already owned by the ball club.

Ivy, who played a dashing first base for the Crackers on the pennant-winning "kid" team of 1919, was down at Montgomery Sunday, scouting around for a manager's job in the newly revamped Southeastern league.

"Say," Ivy spoke up while we were sitting around in one of those smoke-festooned ante-rooms that are always provided by the sporting goods salesmen, "what is all this big to-do that is being raised down in Atlanta about getting a second baseman from the big leagues?"

"They may not know it down there," he continued, "but the Atlanta club is getting three or four young players from Charlotte, including a second baseman named Lipscomb, that are going to be real ball players for them."

LIKES OTHERS.

Griffin, who played first base and managed the Asheville club in the big league, said today he was wired stuck on Lipscomb. "Pinky" Jones, the outfielder, and Chester Martin, the pitcher, who finished up with the club.

"I doubt seriously if you can get a Class B second baseman from a big league club or anywhere else," he said, "but I like Lipscomb. He isn't so flashy right now, but he is big and strong, has a good arm, can make those double plays and hit. He's a 'honey' in my opinion."

Griffin, who ought to know second basemen, says that Lipscomb, who has been in pro ball only a full season, is a much better hitter than his .304 average of last season indicates.

INJURY HURT HIM.

"The kid hit like a million until the last three weeks of the season, and then an injury put him in a slump. He tried to stay in the lineup despite the injury and it affected his average," Ivy added.

Griffin also spoke highly of James, the former Duke University all-around athlete, whom he says is the fastest runner he ever saw.

PIERRE BOOSTS MARTIN.

Griffin addressed an audience that included Bill Pierre, the veteran Birmingham scout; "Shovel" Hodge, former well-known Southern league pitcher, and others.

Bill Pierre, who managed Montgomery to a pennant in 1928 and started Joe Palumbo, the Cracker catcher, out in professional ball, then had a word to say about these boys, whom he had opportunity to see play when he was scouting for the Piedmont league last summer.

Griffin agreed with everything that Pierre said about James and Lipscomb and put in a word about Chester Martin, the pitcher, whom he thought about the best left-hander up there last year. Martin's two shutouts after joining the Crackers proved him as a prospect.

PICKED UP HARRIS.

Pierre, who also picked up Dave Harris, the Cracker's new right fielder, said he was managing in the Piedmont league, is an interesting character and knows a lot about some of the Atlanta players.

"I'm stuck on that Hayes, the pitcher, too, and I know that Harris will hit for you. I believe you fellows are going to have a real ball club this year," Bill declared.

Griffin regretted that the Crackers got rid of Taff Wright, the young outfielder, and Heinie Mueller, the young infielder, both of whom came from the Piedmont league. He thinks both should be a thriller.

OUTLOOK FAIR FOR JACKETS; 55 MEN REPORT

Alex Will Decide on Style of Play Later, He Says.

By Ralph McGill.

Football squads reported at Georgia and Georgia Tech yesterday afternoon for the important weeks of spring practice.

Georgia had out 70 men and 55 were present at Grant field.

Coach W. A. Alexander, Tech coach, was found in a conservative mood. Over the wires Harry Mehre reported from Georgia that he also was conservative.

"I haven't any idea what we will have, until we have had some practice," said Coach Alexander. "A great many men are new, we have about 40 up from our freshman squads. It is impossible to tell. Naturally we hope to be better than we were last year but this must await developments. Our backs should be better. Our line is problematical."

From Athens Harry Mehre said: "I think we will be pretty steady defensively next fall. But right now our offense doesn't look so formidable. We've had the freshmen out for a week and the varsity checked in today, giving us about 70 men. Our ends appear to be the biggest problem."

Georgia, however, is expected to put the usual strong team in the field. Mehre said that a poor one since he took over the head coaching job. His teams have played strong schedules and won more than their share of victories.

He will have some fast backs but may lack some power which was his in past seasons. It will be, I think, the best set of backs he has had in years of play. With some good luck, backfield may come around as a fast, good passing set of backs.

His ends constitute the real problem. His team appears really weak only at those points.

Georgia, like Tech, has lost a great many backs and must depend on new material.

Coach Alexander, whose material has been sketchy and possessed of no ability, greets some of the backs from the freshman team with a look to look better and possess more natural ability than any backs he has had in the past three years.

This assumption may or may not be true. It depends on how they develop in varsity competition.

The report from Georgia is contained in a special story from there on this page. Georgia Tech had the following men to report:

GUARDS—John Wilcox, Fulton Brittain, Finckelstein, Carr, Schmitt (2), Miller (2), Carmack (2), Glendening (2), Miller (2), Wilson (2), Plummer (2).

TACKLES—Charles (2), Roberts (2), Ross (2), Chance, Hartman (2), Roberts (2), Ross (2), Chance, Hartman (2), Roberts (2), Ross (2).

PREP CARD OPENS WITH FOUR TILTS

Four basketball games today will open the week's prep schedule of nine games here in addition to several rounds of tennis.

Commercial plays R. E. Lee, of Thomaston, at the J. P. C. court, and G. M. A. meets Fulton. High school teams play at the Dr. C. C. Park. This second game was originally scheduled as part of a double-header at the Pryor street court this afternoon.

Russell plays North Fulton at Buckhead in the other afternoon game.

In a night game, Decatur plays Druid Hills a double-header, starting at 7:30 o'clock on the Dr. C. C. Park. A girls' game will precede the boys' affair.

Crawford Shows Much Improvement

KINSTON, N. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Pat Crawford, publicity inquirer of the St. Louis Cardinals, was last week named manager of the Rochester club of the International league, was said by his wife and physicians at a hospital here today to be "much improved."

"The doctors believe now that Pat has a better than even chance to come through—in fact they feel that he will," Mrs. Crawford said. "We haven't told him anything about his being appointed manager of the Rochester club until he is well enough to be happy to hear it. He is perfectly conscious, but we do not take the chance of tiring him by conversing too much."

Crawford and his wife are spending the winter here with Mrs. Crawford's parents. The player underwent an operation several weeks ago and an infection developed when he was about to leave the hospital. His condition has been serious for several days.

Warneke Signs His Cub Contract

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Signed contracts of Lon Warneke, star right-hander, and Fabian Kowalik, a recruit hurler, were received by the Chicago Cubs today, bringing the number of those in the fold to 17.

Aragon Mills Down Kraft Cheese, 38-21

ARAGON, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Aragon Mills basketball team defeated the Kraft Cheese team of Atlanta Saturday night by the score of 38-21 for their ninth win of the season. J. Parham and L. Garrison were high point men for Aragon with 12 points each. For Kraft Cheese, Harbin with 7 points was high.

STRANGE SIGNS

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns today announced receipt of the signed contract of Alan Strange, shortstop.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot market closed steady, 10 points down at 12.40; Receipts 25,000 bales; Shipments 4,000; stocks, 111,535.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(R)—Moderate decline in cotton today was attributed to liquidation and foreign selling prompted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and the early weakening of the exchange.

Offerings were absorbed by scale down buying from the trade. The market closed steady at net declines of 10 to 15 points.

Dungannon forenoon the market worked off 15 to 16 points on the active positions, but these levels inspired enough trade buying to cause a rally.

Exports today 5,592 making 2,899,045 so far this season. Port receipts 2,271. United States port stocks 2,320,602.

Liverpool reported a quiet hesitant market with the fluctuations in exchange unsettling sentiment. The New that stocks of Indian cotton in India at the end of December were so small as to suggest that spinners in foreign countries might be forced to obtain their use of Indian staple and turn to other sources, probably the United States.

Connections with Liverpool, and Continental connections as well as Bombay were credited with early selling here. There was some buying during the afternoon believed to be for Japanese second crop.

There was a small amount of trading here during the day which some observers thought might be connected with the cotton futures market. It had included some selling of May and purchases of December, but was not in sufficient volume to attract much attention.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON
DECLINES, 10 TO 21 CENTS
NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The cotton market here was considerably more active today, but prices ruled easier owing to much lower cables edged selling and long liquidation added on fears of the supreme court's decision in the gold case.

After opening 5 to 7 points lower, prices steadily declined until they closed 15 to 18 points under the previous at close. There was a rally of 3 to 6 points near the close in shorts covering and the market finished steady with prices showing net declines for the day of 9 to 11 points.

The market opened easier as Liverpool cables came in much worse than due and sterling was weak. Private cables stated that the Liverpool market was hesitant, weakness in the cotton market was attributed to being unsettling influences and there was at small trade calling.

Federal grand jury will convene February 6 to take up a number of cases on which the district attorney is seeking indictments, it was announced Monday.

Jeremiah Dowdy, negro, Monday was bound over to Fulton superior court, under $500 bond, on charges of securing goods by false pretenses, by Recorder John L. Cone. Judge Cone made the negro sign his name and, after comparing it to the signature on receipts the negro had signed for the cigarettes, decided to hold Dowdy.

Conie Mason, veteran deputy clerk of Charles M. Cooper, twice convicted of the slaying of J. T. Chapman in 1932, was completed Monday. Len G. Guilbeaux, Cooper's attorney, said that he will file an amended motion for a new trial as soon as he has completed a study of the record.
